LIGHTS CAMERA ACTION

For encouraging and guiding
For seeing talent we did not recognize
For sharing the thrill of opening night
We dedicate the '85 TEMPO.

Mrs. Betty Randall, a teacher at BHS for the past eight years, devotes much of her time to the theatre department.

Mrs. Randall, who teaches both Theatre Arts and Speech at BHS, has had many years of previous experience in theatre. She taught English and Drama at North Central High School along with planning, directing, technical directing, constructing sets and designing costumes for the school plays. She also directed ticket sales, publicity, handled the budget for the plays and sponsored the Drama Club. She has also had experience in tutoring developmentally dyslexic and hyperkinetic teenagers for the Indiana Research Association for Specific Perceptual Motor Disabilities.

Mrs. Randall has had many different jobs in the theatre area including technical and lighting director for the Circle Players in Indianapolis, technical director for the Buck Creek Players, and at one time she was the Film Booker and Librarian for Channel 8.

Some of her interests include a book she is now writing to encourage more performing arts participation in churches. She also enjoys canoeing, sailing, camping, wildlife and wildlife photography, ballet lessons, gardening under lights, carpentry, sewing, and furniture finishing.

Her training included an MA in speech and theatre at IU, and she has taken additional courses in psychology and courses at IU's Department of Theatre and Drama Stage Lighting.

So for all your dedication and help, to you, Mrs. Betty Randall, we, the 1985 Tempo Staff, dedicate this yearbook.

Spirit week kicked off Homecoming '84. Spirit week started with pajama day on Monday. The week then proceeded with 50's day on Tuesday, sweats day on Wednesday, inside-out day on Thursday, and traditional purple and white day on Friday. Class Princesses were elected: Pam Parker for the freshman, Michelle Dowden for the Sophomores, and Joanne Bishop for the juniors. Nominees for Homecoming Queen included Theresa Parker, Terri Wardle, Lori Lael, and Debbie McKenzie.

Friday arrived and the excitement had built. After the traditional homecoming parade, the game was ready to begin. As the fighting Bulldogs charged out onto the field, purple and white balloons were released by the cheerleaders and the guard. The game got under way and the crowd was going wild by half time because the Bulldogs were ahead of the Mavericks 12-0. The tension mounted and the moment finally arrived; Terri Wardle was named Homecoming Queen '84. She was crowned by Phillip Nelson, who not only donated the Queen's crown, but also was the Grand Marshall of the Homecoming Parade. After the marching band's performance, the results for the float competition were announced: first, the juniors; second, the freshman; third, the seniors; and fourth, the sophomores. The theme for the float competition was "Fairy Tales." The capacity crowd was not disappointed when the evening turned out to be a success for the Bulldogs — they beat the McCutcheon Mavericks 26-0.

OF . . .

or being still

Throughout the years, these students strove to fulfill certain goals and dreams in their lives. When asked what these goals were, they made the following comments;

Jon Acton "I might go into communications, but I'm still undecided."

LeAnn Burks "to honor God, and someday become a social worker so I can help other people."

Todd Giles "I plan to attend Indiana University and study fine arts to become either a commercial artist or designer."

Matt Hoffman "I want to have a good family life."

Sandy Klein "I plan to go to Purdue and major in engineering or computer science. Afterwards, I plan on having a career and one day build my own home."

Lori Lael "I plan to go to Indiana University and major in either elementary education or child psychology. By the time I am 24, I want a good job, a rich husband, and two children."

Debbie McKenzie "Since I very much enjoy sports, I would like to get into sports medicine or physical therapy."

Teri McLoed "I want to have a fulfilling life."

Dung Nguyen "I want to be prosperous."

Theresa Parker "After I go to Purdue and become a rich engineer, I want to marry and have a happy life."

These Top Ten Seniors pursued leadership, knowledge, dreams, and ideals. The faculty voted for the seniors they considered excellent students as well as hard workers. These achievers were willing to put forth what it took to make the class of '85 the best. These people will meet the challenges at the crossroads and put out the effort and time to do what it takes to get the job done.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Foreign exchange students and Americans met at the crossroads of learning during the past year. The exchange students experienced a new way of life in America and shared their ideas and goals with American teenagers. Also, through these exchange programs both the exchange students and BHS students gained an understanding of one another's countries and lifestyles. The ideas and thoughts exchanged between these students will last a lifetime. The fun times and wonderful memories will also never be forgotten.

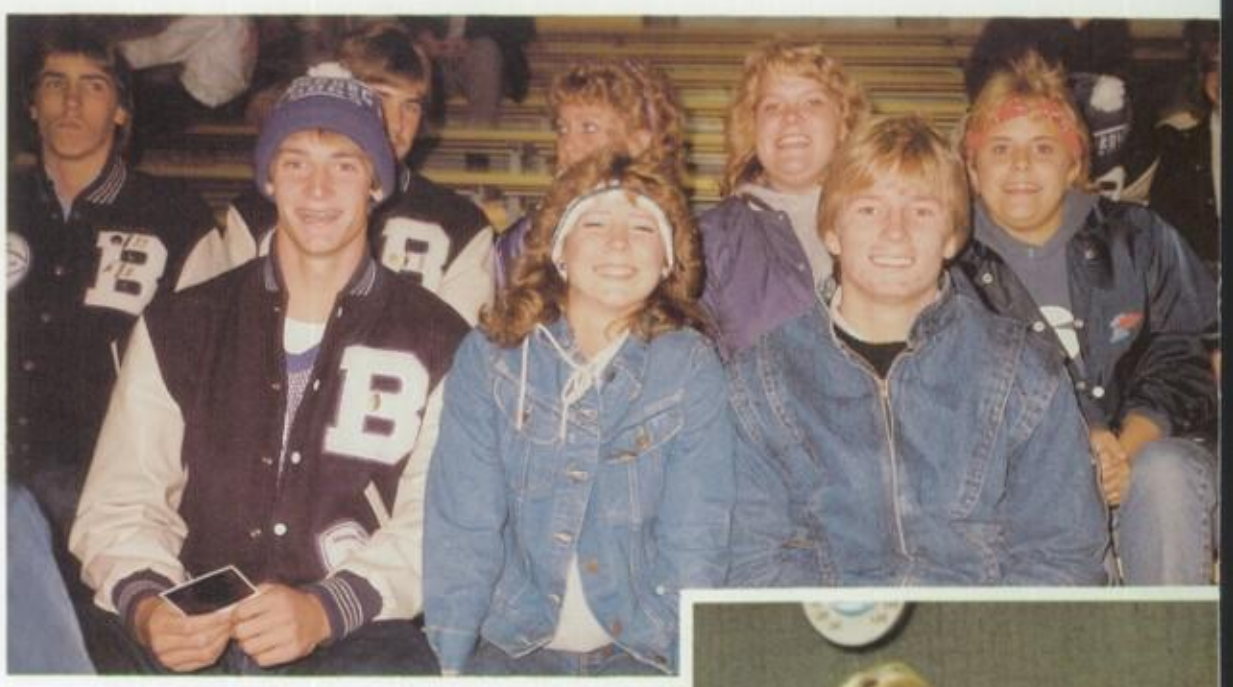
"Let us treasure these moments for



PROUD TO BE A SENIOR!

I'm proud to be a Senior of the class of "85",
This class is joy & laughter
this class is really alive!

When I walk down the hall
I hold my head up high,
And listen to the freshmen say,
"That was a Senior that just passed by!"

The years to get here were very long and rough,
But we made it through the 11 years and showed we were tough!

The final year will be,
by far the very best
And we'll make this whole school see we're better than all the rest!

I'm proud to be a member of the class that takes no jive
Oh yes I'm proud to be a Senior
A Senior of "85"!!!!!

JUNIOR MISS

Dance the Night Away was the theme for this year's Junior Miss Pageant. For the first time in the pageant's seven year run it was held during the summer instead of during school. Twenty girls vied for the title of 1985 Junior Miss but the honor went to Patty Newsom who also was named Poise and Appearance winner. Other winners were Debbie McKenzie, first runner-up; Theresa Parker, second runner-up and scholastic; Lori Lael, youth fitness; Angie Myers, talent; and Jennifer Stout, spirit of Junior Miss.

ADMINISTRATION

Giving direction toward the right path

Due to new guidelines in education adopted by the state legislature, drastic changes had to be made in high schools throughout the state. The length of classes was increased to 60 minutes and all unnecessary convocations and programs were eliminated from the curriculum. Under pressure from concerned parents, the Brownburg School Corporation opted for a waiver of the regulations. These changes, however, are scheduled to go into effect at the start of the next school year.

Here at BHS, several notable changes occurred. Jim Acton assumed the position of Assistant principal while Don Bauchert became the new athletic director. Student assistants were nearly eliminated by the state guidelines. New teachers, aides, and secretaries were added to the staff. On the physical side, a new elevator for handicapped students and new outside locker facilities enhanced the campus. These changes, although unfamiliar to the student body, added much to the overall academic climate of BHS.

BUSINESS ED

Building a foundation for future enterprise

The business classes were designed to help the student in all fields of study, not just business majors. The business staff has been together at BHS for several years which provided better continuity in the students' further studies. The business equipment at BHS is some of the best in the state. All of the equipment, such as typewriters and data processors, were updated at the start of the 1984-1985 school year. These changes will help build future foundation for the students.

MATH/SCIENCE

Working to understand the world around us

The science, math, computer departments are trying to keep up with their steadily growing fields. In order to do this, several new teachers were added to the faculty. Miss Day, Mr. Cooper, and Mr. Emmert joined the science department and Mrs. Ragsdale was added to the math department. Miss Day was previously a substitute teacher at Mooresville, while Mr. Cooper and Mr. Emmert taught out of state before coming to BHS. Mrs. Ragsdale, who has taught in Brownsburg for approximately ten years, was transferred from the junior high. These new teachers helped to better the students' studies in these fields.

Students at BHS had many opportunities to develop their talents. The fine staff helped the students bring out their creative talents in band, choir, art, industrial arts, and home economics classes. Band and choir students developed their musical abilities by giving various performances throughout the year. Some of the art students had a chance to exhibit their works at the annual art show. Some of the students were exposed to future job opportunities in the many industrial arts classes offered. Home economics classes prepared students for the responsibilities of homemaking. With the encouragement of the teachers, the students gained valuable knowledge needed to help them in the rest of their lives.

SOCIAL STUDIES/ LIBRARY

Learning through history and research

The social studies department taught the past, present, and helped predict the future. The history classes informed the students about their heritage and happenings in the world today. The government classes gave the students a vivid picture of democracy by holding a mock election. The election predicted Ronald Reagan beating Walter Mondale in a landslide victory, which happened in the actual election.

The library department helped the students in their individual studies. The librarians guided the students through the maze of books, files, periodicals, and microfilms for much needed information.

The English department strived to develop a better understanding of the English language for the students. The English classes taught the value and the importance of the language. By improving reading comprehension and verbal skills the students became better linguists.

The foreign language classes gave students a chance to explore a new language. Many foreign language students had an opportunity to go to different countries over spring break. More times than not students understood their English classes better after completing a foreign language course.

STAFF

Always there to help

Throughout the 1984-85 school year, the BHS staff kept the student body well fed, maintained the building, and safely transported students to and from school. The cafeteria staff prepared nutritious meals, varying from corndogs to wacky cake to salad bar. The custodians, always handy in emergencies, kept all in working order. The bus drivers provided efficient and needed transportation on regular routes as well as for field trips. Though sometimes forgotten, the staff at BHS is the true backbone of the school.

Toward the end of last year, work on the 1984-85 Tempo had already started. After the new staff was selected, ads were passed out and the designing of the book began. Some of the staff had the chance to participate in a yearbook camp at Hanover College. At the camp, the staff learned how to write copy and captions, take and develop photographs, plan and draw layouts, and crop pictures. Also at the camp, the design for the cover of the 1984-85 Tempo was decided on and the yearbook began to take shape. With the installation of a darkroom in the yearbook office, the photographers were able to print the needed photographs faster than in previous years. As the year progressed, the staff learned about responsibility and how to work as a group.

Commitment Yearbook Staffers Sandy Allen, Kathy Gnall, and Jerald Fussell commit themselves to doing a good job.

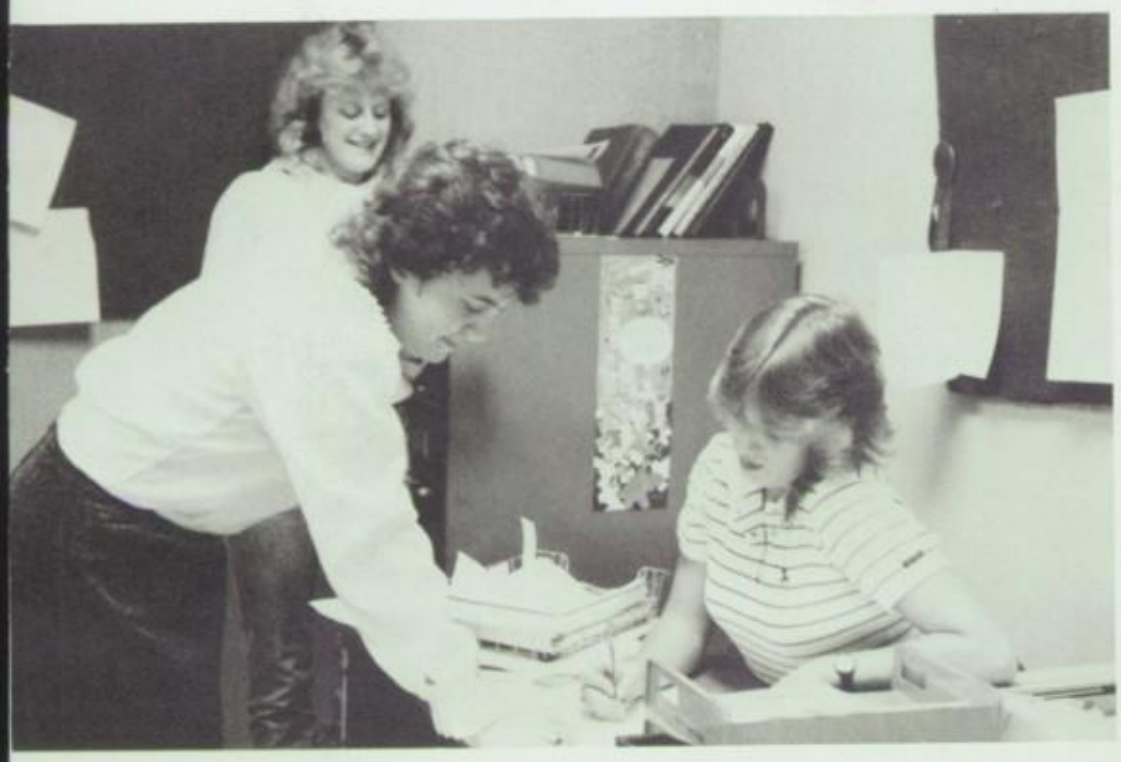
Bobbi Miller, Senior, is checking out copy of the REVEILLE.

REVEILLE



The award winning REVEILLE made several firsts in the field of journalism at BHS. For the first time in BHS history the paper came out every two weeks. With six seniors on the staff, the REVEILLE had the experience to make the paper work. Also, for the first time, the Journalism class shared the classroom combined reporting and writing techniques, which it learned in the classroom, with the on-the-job experience of putting the paper together. Mrs. Jill Levin split her time teaching the Journalism class and advising the staff. Though it took much time, The REVEILLE staff and Journalism class worked hard to keep the reader informed and entertained.

Teamwork REVEILLE staff members work together to produce an award winning newspaper.

Mixed emotions REVEILLE reporters Andy Roesener and Pat Woods and staff member Wendy Konerman show enthusiasm at deadline time.

Oh yes! Editor-in-Chief Andy Baldwin displays his most prized stories.

Advisor Mrs. Jill Levin proudly supports the Reveille.

brain game

This year's Brain Game team kicked off the first round of competition for the Indianapolis area schools. The first game which took place during the second week in September was against Brebeuf; BHS won the match. The team then lost their second match to North Central. The team which included Mike Bain, Randy Smith, Cheryl Rumsey, Dung Nguyen, and Andy Baldwin, alternate was chosen during tryouts last spring. The key to a successful Brain Game match was fast thinking, quick response, and knowledge in several areas.

School bus fun The Brain Game team leisurely relaxes before the match.

Good Job The team proved they were better than Brebeuf by the 84-82 score.

BHS Brain Game members show the true spirit of competition.

TV Stars These competitors were true stars on Channel 13.

Together we laugh
Together we cry
We'll always be friends
As time passes by.

We'll always have our friendship
No matter what comes our way,
We'll always be together
All the time and day by day.

Ever since we met
We've been really close,
I've had other friends
But I like you most.

We've helped each other out
Through good and bad times too,
I guess that's what I like
Most of all about you.

I know sometimes we've fought
About the dumbest things,
But learned from our mistakes
And saw what friendship brings.

We'll be friends forever
But if we ever part,
We'll remember the good times
That we had from the start.

THANK YOU

You fill my life with beauty,
Joy and love.
You take me where I've never been,
Just like the cloud above.
You show me things inside myself
I've never known before,
You learn my thoughts and feelings
And then you teach me more.
  All these things
Have meant to me
More than you will ever see.

But what means the most to me
Is that you accepted me completely
And loved me for the person I am.
Thank you for being my friend.

TO BE ACCOMPANIED BY HORNS

Their faces painted pale to hide the scars, the marks, the blemish
They try to cover the lines of time and erase the mark that makes them human It's not themselves but something else they want to be Acting . . . in a different way they live their life in a state of numbness
Are they on a search for many or do they just wish to find a few
Does the mirror make you slip
  Are you on a reoccurring trip with your soul hopelessly lost in a haze of mindlessness
Do you really know what you've done can't even explain where you've been
The world turns
  you forgot to spin
Do I know you with your eyes colored blue
  Or should I read from the script

FRIENDS

Friends are many things they say;
Something to use, then throw away.
Someone to take advantage of,
Not giving a thought to feelings or love.
When money is needed, they're someone to lend,
Then they're forgotten after you spend.
Friends are all of these things and more;
They're fine when they're there, but mostly a chore.
That's what the world says friends really are,
But the true meaning of friends is really quite far.
Friends are laughter and smiles and caring;
Loving and giving, helping and sharing.
They're a warm cup of cocoa on a cold winter day,
A light in the darkness to chase fears away.
They symbolize peace in a time of despair,
And no matter what happens, they'll always be there.
True friends know trust and hope and pride.
They accept the out, and love the inside.
The true meaning of friends is quite simple, you see;
They love for what's there . . . and not what could be.

polished with gold is soup softly floating

Spinning anger within

Bring me the tongue of the Chosen One

Biding his time
he shakes

I have cornered him now he cannot sleep, only gasp for breath

his life line
I will break

I see the sunset the ominous colors are dancing off
the earth, But yet somehow I feel that my dreams have been destroyed. The sunset has a symbolic meaning to me. The sunset is trying to say this is end. The end of hoping, the end of living.
But tomorrow, maybe there will be another dawn.
Maybe a beginning to a new day? Am I blind? Why can't I see past tonight? The colors are fading now . . . I am crying. I have lost a part of my soul in the sunset.

I have lived
I have died
I have been reborn
I am free

THE PLAYER

Here I stand,
Alone
My hands sweep
The sleek, ivory keys,
Playing my song
for no one.
the melody sways,
Grows louder,
Softer, bounces around Reaching the ears,
Of no one
The lights flash
To the beat,
Proudly reflecting off
My sequins into the eyes
of no one.
Here I stand,
Playing
In a crowded hall
Alone.

Gray circles
Perceptions and forms . . .
Bouncing Home
Pointing the way to a new light.
Going home now
I've spent too much time alone and failing.
With such abstract thoughts
groveling for existence
I'm coming Home
A new crisp mind
Instead of repetition of the Past.

Cry, you must start again

There was a time that was
So happy I could not see Blindness was wonderful

Running into dreams
Then it was shattered
Anger overcame
Nothing was happy
Pushed into unwanted fame
I feel nothing now
Only bitter words
False and unkind
like a segment in time

AND ME ALSO.
WE ARE HANGING ON.
BARELY.
THE WORLD TRIES TO IGNORE . . .
US.
OUTSIDE WHERE WE ARE, IS WARM AND INSIDE WHERE THEY ARE, IS COLD.
WE TRY TO REACH OUT TO THEM
BUT SOME PUSH US AWAY
WHILE OTHERS ARE CAUGHT IN BETWEEN

it won't let her die.

the grating of fingernails against her ugly face, making her . . .
beautiful

what is it? ? ?

she goes on living, going crazy.

one last final

she feels herself dying . . .
in a pool of her own

The old cameo
Lays on her dressing table
Being forgotten.

She has forgotten
All of her good times,
Staring into space.

I try to reach out,
Only to be ridiculed
By my own mind.

I'll just let her go,
I'll wear the old cameo
To carry on life.

SEDGEWICK

She was a dream
A celluloid dream
The ethereal woman
Everyone wanted to be

No mistakes in her move
She floated above

Her beauty
Disgracing us all
Then driving away

Her day came
She had to end
Memories of her
Never will stay.

WINGS

Why not be who we really are Instead of whom others believe we should be?
Why not, when we can spread our wings,
Fly, be ourselves, truly be free.

Why should we be what this world thinks
When really we can be so much more?
Why should we stifle our true inner selves,
We can — that's what God gave us wings for!

The sky is the limit, and the sky never ends,
So spread your wings, find yourself, set your spirit free!
Swim the oceans, climb the mountains,
Be the complete person you really can be.

THE ROSE

bright and beautiful does it appear thru morning light dripping with dew a lovely appearance it gives all year a gift of love for friends, old and new it shows signs of life early in spring first the leaves and, then the bloom it makes the world's beauty ring its splendor will light up any room it smells so sweet so young, so fresh in the august heat
a silky touch to the flesh then autumn comes around its beauty slowly fades
the petals and leaves fall to the ground once again to the flower graves on the ground the snow lies it's a part of the trend
it's in the fall when the roses die til spring rolls around again our lives are similiar to that of a rose we start as a child and develop into an adult learning and growing in all kinds of ways happiness and joy is our bloom, but in the end death'll result.

A FIGHT WITHIN

A fight within
I have logic
I can write it so cold and cruel
But it's not me
when I do that.
We have a reason a purpose but it has to be Logical
If not, you're considered crazy
but I don't want to end up being a non-thinking Logical Robot
No, I want to feel real emotion
I want to see the beautiful place where I live
Knowing that I am safe
Security
I'm not going to become brainwashed
I'm not Because He will save Us.

— Beth Fedor

THIS WAY

This way
was it only once for awhile in a long time
See the way I am
I'm plain
But we saw it through
This way
Knowing more Seeing more for awhile
Maybe never again hopefully another time
To see and to Know that we were this way

Feel the Spirit
He leads you to truth
when confused
You turn to the Lord
Lift up in Spirit!
Reach to Him!
He loves you!
Feel the Spirit!

Riding on the very edge Daring to go over but He stops you
Feel the Spirit
He lifts you up!
back to where you belong!

THE SPARKLING LIGHT

Look into the Sparkling Light
Its powers will unfold and envelop you whole
Believe me, the Sparkling Light Your future it does hold, your soul is halfway sold
Bow to the Sparkling Light
It is nobler than a king, grab hold before it takes towing
Our guardian, the Sparkling Light
It is nobler than a king, grab hold before it takes towing
Our guardian, the Sparkling Light
Has come to pick the chosen few, as he watches all we do
Help me to the Sparkling Light Before it vanishes, before the punishment begins
It's too late . . .

The sky became crimson
The air became red hot
He wanted to live another day
But the Light had said he would not

Everything fell dead or dying
I turned to ask Him why
But I did not dare ask
For I saw the Light cry

My heart went out to those who suffered
Then I shuddered with fear
My loved ones were down there
And I did not shed a tear

After the last man
Fell dead, short of breath
We held hands together
For them there would be no eternal rest

And the Sparkling Light was heard to say:
"Beatae res numquam durant."
(Blessed things never last)

— Jerald Fussell

I have lived a long fulfilling life.
but void is the feeling right now.
Running in my blood being — unsatisfied . . .
I have tried to carry on the Light into the darkening world.

The church echoes of silence . . .
I am sitting there alone.
Old voices are heard.
My voice is silent, but in my heart
I am trying to remind myself of the ti
when the Master has saved me.
My lips ache to tell of a time when I was really happy.
Those tales are reflected off the Cross.
Where Christ died.
AND was Resurrected.
And this is how I realized that there is peace within me again.

CLOSING MY EYES

I close my eyes and there you are
As sudden as day breaks and night f
I reach out to touch you.
You're not there, but only in my min
I can't have you there every moment,
To tell you how much I care about you
Or to put my arms around you and hold you tight.
At times I only wish for you
To be there by my side.
For you to need me as I need you.
I want to be close to you,
And always have you,
But since I can't, I'll continue
Closing my eyes, finding you there,
As sudden as day breaks and night falls,
But not to touch.

THE LEGEND

Many years ago a wizard arose from nowhere
And wherever he went he created the mood in the air
He possessed a weapon that no one had ever seen before
And with it he opened a brand new door
He played it so gently like an English rain
And he played like thunder while it screamed out pain
He played with a demon's speed above the rest
He was definitely one of this world's best
He played as soft as an angel floating in a cloud
But then he'd go insane and the screams would be oh so loud
When he'd disappear and fade away he'd be oh so QUIET
But when he's amidst a crowd there'd be a hellacious RIOT
If you met him he'd give you a ride OVER THE MOUNTAIN on his CRAZY TRAIN
And if you don't make it his SUICIDE SOLUTION would end your pain
I DON'T KNOW exactly what he and his companions were
But I've felt their presence and I'm a true BELIEVER
He created a very beautiful sound entitled DEE
If you listen close it'll touch your soul because it even touched me
He'd play so happily and make you smile
But then he'd display his wrath and instill fear in you for a while
He awakened one morning and was a beautiful dawn
And without any notice he vanished and was gone
All the memories of him people started to collect
And everyone still thought of him with utmost respect
Throughout the world you could hear a sorrowful cry
But the legend of the Thunderbird will never, never die . . .

ONLY IN ME

Only in me
The one you have shunned
No measure good enough
No standard fulfilled me

Only in me
Spinning up to life
Fighting it again
Knowing I will lose
Knowing they will win
Only in me
I cannot follow your way
Though adultery takes wit
Only in me
A naive mind that won't fit

GONE FOREVER

A familiar melody rushes through my head
It must be today's for yesterday's is dead
It left us with the sun.
It had important lyrics but it seems to be forgotten by everyone

As the days pass
So do the people
Along with their dreams
They try to come back,
In the deep of night, You can hear their screams

— Troy Burris

INNOCENCE AND BEAUTY

Innocence and beauty is what I see in your eyes
Bright as the sun at a new sunrise
It's a powerful feeling strange yet familiar Put to death or kept alive with one uttered word
Your eyes created feelings, feelings I should have shown
But once I saw him there, I knew they'd never be known
I still think about what I thought could have been
Same old story, my feelings never win
Feeling down and out, hang my head low
It's something to forget about,
but I hang my head low
It's something to forget about, but I know they'll never go

A SNAIL'S PACE

I was running, one day, along a path,
And I noticed a snail just inching along.
I was hot and sweaty, and needed a bath,
Whereas the snail remained pretty as a song.
The snail was slow, that's not for me,
It's not in a hurry,
Even chased by a bee.
It wouldn't move fast, not even a scurry.

Though the snail was going a very slow pace,
Slower than walking or one person rowing,
He was contented, and wished not to race,
'Cause he knew eventually he'd get where he's going.
To him, survival is not a great feat,
He doesn't think life is just one big bummer.
The snail is himself, and moves to the beat,
Of his own personal, private drummer.

All should mimic the snail in life,
For it is important to have peace of mind.
The snail is carefree, and devoid of strife.
So go your own pace, and be your own kind.

WHAT HAPPENED TO YOU

Motionless, stand the cogs of a plastic mind
You see the words, but find yourself blind
Play follow the leader
Become a stampeder

You're part of a world that's brave and new
What does it say, when it calls to you
A plastic mind, a plastic soul,
The plastic body will make you whole

Tour plastic family, house and car
Plasticity can never go too far
Dance securely in your brave new world
As your mind is slowly whirled

Hungry and cold they starve through the night,
With no real understanding, you're left facing unknown plight
Many years with a group, now you stand alone
The piper you have followed, has just changed his tone

— Troy Burris

The rain came drizzling down upon the dry green land.
It had rained all day
so I had not been able to play.
The day looked so bleak,
I thought it might rain all week!

Just as things appeared very bad,
the rain slowed down, (Boy, was I glad)
I saw a rainbow in the sky,
it was so beautiful I almost cried.
My, how the beauty of the world changed
when God chose to stop the rain.

Then I began to think of my life,
things are so bad when I have a strife.
But if I hang on to a shimmer of hope,
things work out, I learn to cope.
So if your life looks really bad, wait for that rainbow, you'll be glad.

— Tom King

CATERPILLAR

O caterpillar with so many legs,
You started out as butterfly eggs.
You crawl around on the ground,
And people kick you all around.

But you escape this awful plight,
As your cocoon protects you for many a night
One morning as the sun arose,
A beautiful butterfly you exposed.

From the start until the end,
Though life was hard you did not bend.
And though you started on the ground,
You finished triumphantly skyward bound.

— Pat Woods

THE WHALE HUNT

As the sun began to rise across the sea,
A gentle whale swam playfully.
Little did he know that far behind was a big ship of an unknown kind.

Aboard this ship was a husky man who the crew called the captain.
He was out on a mission called a hunt.
For it was a whale that he did want.

As he looked out across the sea,
a water spout came to him visually.
He cried in a shout, "Thar she blows!"
And the crew men's eyes were filled with glows.

As they threw the harpoon into the air,
the giant whale gave a cry of dispair.
The crew grew into a trance-like fear,
as the great angry whale drew near and near.

With his giant tail he smashed the boat,
Making sure it would never again float.
With his head he rammed the side, leaving nowhere for sailors to hide.

The captain with not a spot of him dry, struggling gave his last desperate cry.
He mumbled the words, "Thar she blows!"
This is the end of him as everyone knows.

As for the whale who won with victory,
he is still out there swimming quickly farther and farther away from the spot where a struggling battle he had fought.

So, whenever you see a graceful whale,
stop and remember this dramatic tale.
Whenever you're in a boat to sail,
be courteous, do not bother the whale.

DEDICATION

The sound and color you have brought
And given so graciously to us
We will treasure in own sweet memories
Even more dearly in our hearts

If life were a single song
Of which you have played a note in each and every one

Creating the best and the most beautiful one

Speaking helpful truths of living and learning
With wisdom of a sage
We will always remember that one special person
Who helped us onto center stage

OPPOSITE CORNERS

The line is drawn
The ties are broken
Surrounded by humanity
We can't see past ourselves

It's us and them
The lines too thin
We fear ourselves
In those we hate

A circle is made
Be it wide or thin
Some are cast out
Others held in

Our eyes are closed
To protect what we see
Because new vision
Brings new thoughts
New thoughts can puncture the circle

Opposites attract Likes repel
We throw one another in opposite corners
To protect ourselves

HE WAS WRONG

"Why?" she asked
"Because," he said
She
at her locker
He turned and left her standing crying alone
Or was she?
He looked back and wished he hadn't
She
was watching
bitter and
knew
He
was Wrong.
But it was too late too late?
No.
He couldn't and . . .
knew
He

Wrong!

TEARS OF BLUE MOON

Tears of Trial of trial and error are flowing gently down my face,
Your face looks intently.
My blue lanquid pools reflect agony
of a full gracious moon.

Tears spill over now;
They are bitter . . .
yet sweet.
Your eyes show tears,
but they don't flow freely,
I talk,
I scream of loneliness,
but yet you do not hear,
Tears block your eyes,
unseeing and selfish.
But why me?
No one has died maybe
I have.
but the eyes of blue say, nothing . . .
A song Plays, I listen,
I cry.
tears of bitterness definitely.
You ask why, I don't know.
I say ask yourself.
But you run away,
saying nothing.
no more tears now.
I reach out for something turning into nothing, Why?
You have left.
The moon so full Shadows of moonlight fall over each other.
I am naked
stripped of feelings.
With new tears of relief
I tremble slightly, removing any doubt that this time
our tears were real.

CLOSE TO MY HEART

I know how to write poetry I just have problems on what words to put down
When someone is on your mind
You need a lot of time
To decide what you want to Say but the only thing I Can think about is I want to Keep you close to my heart

Seeing you is the easy part
But knowing what to say
Is the hard part
The only easy thing for me
To do is keeping you close
To my heart

Wanting to hold you near Wanting to say I love you
Is very hard for me to do
The only part
I want you to understand is
I will always keep you close
To my heart

SO THE CURTAIN FALLS

See the soldier walking tall
Loves his country
His heart's full of pride
But one more step and he will die
So the curtain falls

See the smiling man over there
He's got a cancer in his head
"Weeks to live" the doctor said
And he hasn't been told
So the curtain falls

Life is not what you expect
Happiness in life does not exist
God to sinners is so unkind
Why to me is He so blind?
If God loves every fool
Why does that man lie in a bloody pool?
Love is something no longer real
It is something we no longer feel.
The birds are gone, can't you see?
We have burned down all the trees
The word 'trust' is all but gone
Our evil sides, They have won
The music died so long ago
Why it died no one knows Blissfullness will never be Nothing left to do but flee

See the man with the ring
Wants this girl to marry him
Another man wins her heart
Sells the ring for a gun
So the curtain falls

See the boy playing in the street
Kicked the ball way down the street
Races a car to the other side
His mother calls, the boy falls
So the curtain falls.

THE HEADSTONE

On me I say
    Robert Michael Hienz
April 5, 1963-September 20, 1981
People come to me and cry,
  I don't know why.
The people speak.
  Why did he die?
Suicide what is that.
    I wonder.
That is what they say.
  In low tones, whispers.
Nobody talks loud here.
Excluding the teenager that Tends to the grass.
When he is here the gloomy air,
  Which lives here
Disappears for awhile.
I feel I am becoming like the flowers
  The people bring
The flowers turn brown
  And fade away.
We both are forgotten.

— Lisa Steuerwald

"REMEMBER ME"

If you were to say the words
"Remember me"
  Would you struggle your entire life fighting to be seen?

Or maybe just write a few simple Words for anyone to read.

  When you're remembered they make you something you're not

So whether their talk is good or bad give me no part, I'd rather be forgotten and left in my grave to rot.

PORTRAIT OF AN ELDERLY WOMAN

The stiff, gray-haired figure Shuffles along with Slow, pained movement.
Her gnarled hand grasps
The worn scrapbook
Filled with remembrance of Younger days.
With weary eyes
She glances at photos
And is whisked back in time
To laughter, excitement, and friends.
Chimes of the clock
Bring her back to cruel reality.
Wistfully closing the book
She looks around her lonely apartment.
She watches
The fading Sunset.

MELLO YELLO

Sitting here in Chicago
Drinking my coke,
Which was flat an hour ago,
Wishing people wouldn't smoke, wondering how Mello Yello got its Christian name
Was it named after a fellow,
or pitched in a game?

THE TYPICAL DAY

The alarm clock goes off
At 6 o'clock.
The knob on the toaster
Does not lock.
The fried eggs
Were soft and runny,
The milk was warm
The toast was crummy.
I ran out of the house
10 minutes late
And, as usual,
The bus did not wait.
I walked the distance,
Tired and worn.
When I reached the school,
I saw that my skirt was torn.
I walked into class,
Half now tardy.
The way everyone laughed
You'd think I was Laurel and Hardy!
I looked down,
To avoid the laughs,
And low and behold
My socks didn't match!

REQUIEM FOR A MOSTLY BEAGLE PUPPY

Together,
The child and her puppy
Both bright, and so eager to please.
The backyard becomes their jungle, the Lion and the hunter;
Their desert,
The camel and the beautiful sheik;
Their ocean,
The seahorse and the beautiful mermaid.

In the rain,
They watch cartoons or the Brady Bunch,
Curled up in a chair together with a half eaten
bag of potato chips.
At night they sleep — comforted by each other's breathing and
The warmth of being under the covers.

Together,
The teenager and her dog.
No more games,
But a pat on the head as the girl runs
Out the door.
No more afternoons together
There are practices to make,
Football games to watch,
Boys to chase.
The lion, the camel, and the trusty seahorse
Locked away in a big, empty house,
Waiting and waiting.
For at night they sleep — comforted by Each other's breathing and the warmth of being Under the covers.
Alone —
The young girl thinking back.
Her friend, her companion, her trusty seahorse
Gone as the days they shared.
There is no comfort for the pain,
Her tears, the loneliness.
At night
She sleeps — uneasy and restless,
Throwing the cotton blanket off her shoulders
onto the floor.

"IT'S PASSING"

Quietly humming
he stands there with his brush painting pictures of what he sees

With every brushstroke appears another curse of time
'cause time tries to curse us all

They never asked but days keep changing
now he finds himself so many years behind

But he keeps on searching but he is not sure of his dreams or what he hopes to find

He prays that tomorrow won't ever come but he is tired of today

The chattering chatters never alter their tone
'cause they never talk about change

Joe who has been dead for many years smiles as he sits down and asks for a drink

Sands spill
soon they're lost in a crowd years blend to make a single day

The faces
confused in the world's painful ways twisted and distorted by time and change

The eyes
looking for something sane something familiar, something w/their name

The mouth talking about endless plans why we are here and things they can't understand

The hands reaching for solid ground when what they need is a slice of blue sky

Too much yellow sadly mumbles Joe because when you're painting time you use mostly gray

So quietly humming
they stand there by the easel painting only what they know

THE LITTLE FLOWER

There it was a thick blanket of white,
Unblemished except for one beautiful sight.
The image the small flower which had managed to not look Oh
so sad.
It struggled for each and every breath,
And managed to escape that horrid curse of death.

Oh beautiful little flower,
All alone in the night.
How lovely it must be;
But you saw the light.
It took determination and bravery too,
You chose to win the battle,
not make room for the new.

Looking at the little flower
I thought
I should treasure all that I have got.
If ever again I feel sorrow
I'll reflect on the flower for showing me,
How much in life there really is to see.

QUESTION FOR A STAR

Reaching up to the sky to grasp a star
Hoping to find the answer to all of the questions of the universe
Star, can you tell me what life is for — what purpose do we serve? Everyone exists for a reason, what is mine?
Everyone's route through life takes a different course only you can answer this question.
Just take a deep look into your heart, that is a good place to start

TILL THEY ARE GONE

Like a long summer rain
It's a long lasting pain
To be missed or miss someone dear to you

Looking back on memories
Some again you'll never see
Like the rose that must fade away

You never notice till they are gone
The beauty they brought along
They touch your life and then they are gone

Hear the baby cry aloud
Growing to make Mother and Father proud
You never notice till they are gone

Feeling love inside of you
So deep and so true
You never notice till they are gone

All the people you meet
Even the ones you pass on the street
You never notice, you touch their lives

See the people striving for fame
For any price, ain't that a shame
They never notice till those days are gone

When you are young you are not aware
With age, you will wish you had cared
You never notice till those days are gone

Although, at times, you may have disagreed
Deep inside, they have planted a seed
You never notice till they are gone

From this seed grows a love
And a respect for all they have done
You never notice till they are gone

Look how quickly life passes by
To some, it is a treasure they must hide
Some never notice how wrong they are

The last days we are together
We will know no better
Trying to find a way to show that you care

It is not your future that you fear
It is losing what is so very dear
You never notice till they are gone

As we meet later in life
Try to forget all of your strife
Somehow we will know those days are gone

The beautiful rose has faded away
There is still so much to say
But we all know those days are gone

Tua pulchritudo et laetitia
Memoria semper retinebuntur

A TEARDROP

Slowly it slips
From the interior
Of the human soul
A passage way
A glimpse
Into the tornado of feeling
Whirling inside
So beautiful, delicate
And fragile
Uncapturable in its space
True forms
The essence
Of all complete feelings
For a moment
It hovers
Then ever so slowly
Slides into a destiny
Of nothing

— Michelle Fewell

LAST GOOD-BYE

So entranced by Your eyes, your smile, your subtle sweetness,
I became blind to your faults
But now I see.
With tears and bitterness I realize
You were not what I dreamed you'd be.
So good-bye, sweet boy —, beautiful child —
I wish the best for you

— Michelle Fewell

LEFT UNSPOKEN

What if tomorrow never came
And this was the final day?
Would I have done the same,
Or spent it another way?
Would I have told you I love you
In some poetic rhyme?
Or would I have left that unspoke
For some other time?
Yesterday is gone forever,
Tomorrow may never be,
But I am glad that for today
You are here with me

THE END

The old man has seen the days gone by.
When he was young and had his fun.
It's his time to say goodbye,
to the last days of his life's run.

The old man's heart is slowing down.
His pale wrinkled skin shows the age.
It's color is no longer the smooth brown,
so we must go on and turn the page.

The last hours are coming near.
His concerned wife is by his side.
He knows his time is almost here, because he can feel her sorrow inside.

The old man sees the light,
and then he takes his last breath.
In his last moments he smiles real bright, because he knows it's his death.

— Chris Graves

Gone but not forgotten Dr. Thomas Rohr, Principal, resigned from his job to take on a new challenge. Dr. Rohr accepted a job offer from the North Putman school district as superintendent. Dr. Rohr was principal for BHS for two years and will be remembered as a friendly man. Assistant superintendent Kathleen Corbin temporarily took over Dr. Rohr's job.

Dr. Rohr was granted a few going away presents for his hard work toward the advancement of better education at BHS. The faculty furnished him with a cake, poster, and a pen and pencil set, which was presented by Mr. Don Shepard. President of the Senior class, Jon Acton, provided him with a plaque in recognition of his works at BHS. Dr. Rohr will be missed by many people, but everyone wishes him the best of luck in his new position.

LATIN LIVES AT BHS

Appreciation through certamens and Roman banquets

Latin may be dead but not the the members of the Junior Classical League. Currently the largest club in school, JCL not only sponsored a variety of activities locally but also was an active part of the state Classical League. Members hosted a Round Robin Certamen, the Latin version of the brain game, in the fall which was attended by thirty three teams representing nine different high schools. In February, members participated in the annual Latin Day for Indianapolis. They also planned the local Roman banquet with first year Latin students as slaves. The years' activities ended with the state convention at Indiana State and the annual club cookout.

CREATIVE MINDS ARE ACTIVE

Developing skills for literary section

Mr. Corn, who was the sponsor of SADD also sponsored the creative writing club. The club wrote poems and paragraphs for the literary magazine, which was included in the yearbook this year. Sophomores Ellen Barnett and Beth Fedor were Co-Presidents of the club, and Laura Duncan, sophomore, was Vice-President. The club averaged eight to ten people per meeting. This club gave students a chance to practice writing skills.

CLUBS ARE FUN AT BHS

OEA participated in many different activities this past year. In one such activity, the group sold state champ pennants in January. The group also had the chance to celebrate Christmas with their annual banquet and gift exchange. Some of the contests in which they competed were district competition at Martinsville and state contest at the Hyatt Regency.

Promotion of high school theater was the reason the International Thespian Society was founded. To become a Thespian a person had to devote roughly one hundred hours to the theater. The Thespians presented both a musical and a play every year. They also participated in several local, state, and international Thespian conferenes. Initiation for new members was held twice a year, once after each production. Part of the initiation included scrubbing paint buckets and scouring the stage with tooth brushes. The initiates then took the Thespian pledge and became members of Troupe 2108.

JOYEUX NOËL

Christmas was celebrated in many different ways at BHS this year. The student leadership class again sponsored a door decorating contest. The doors were decorated by the first hour classes and the winners were Mrs. Gibson for religious theme and Mr. Crebbe and Mr. Patterson for secular theme. The Madrigals celebrated Christmas by holding their annual Christmas feast. Students could send greetings to friends or a secret love in the Reveille for 20 cents a line. For the first time the office allowed seniors Jon Acton and Todd Jackson to play Christmas carols before school over the intercom the Friday before Christmas break. Students could also get into the Christmas mood by attending concerts presented by the choirs and bands.

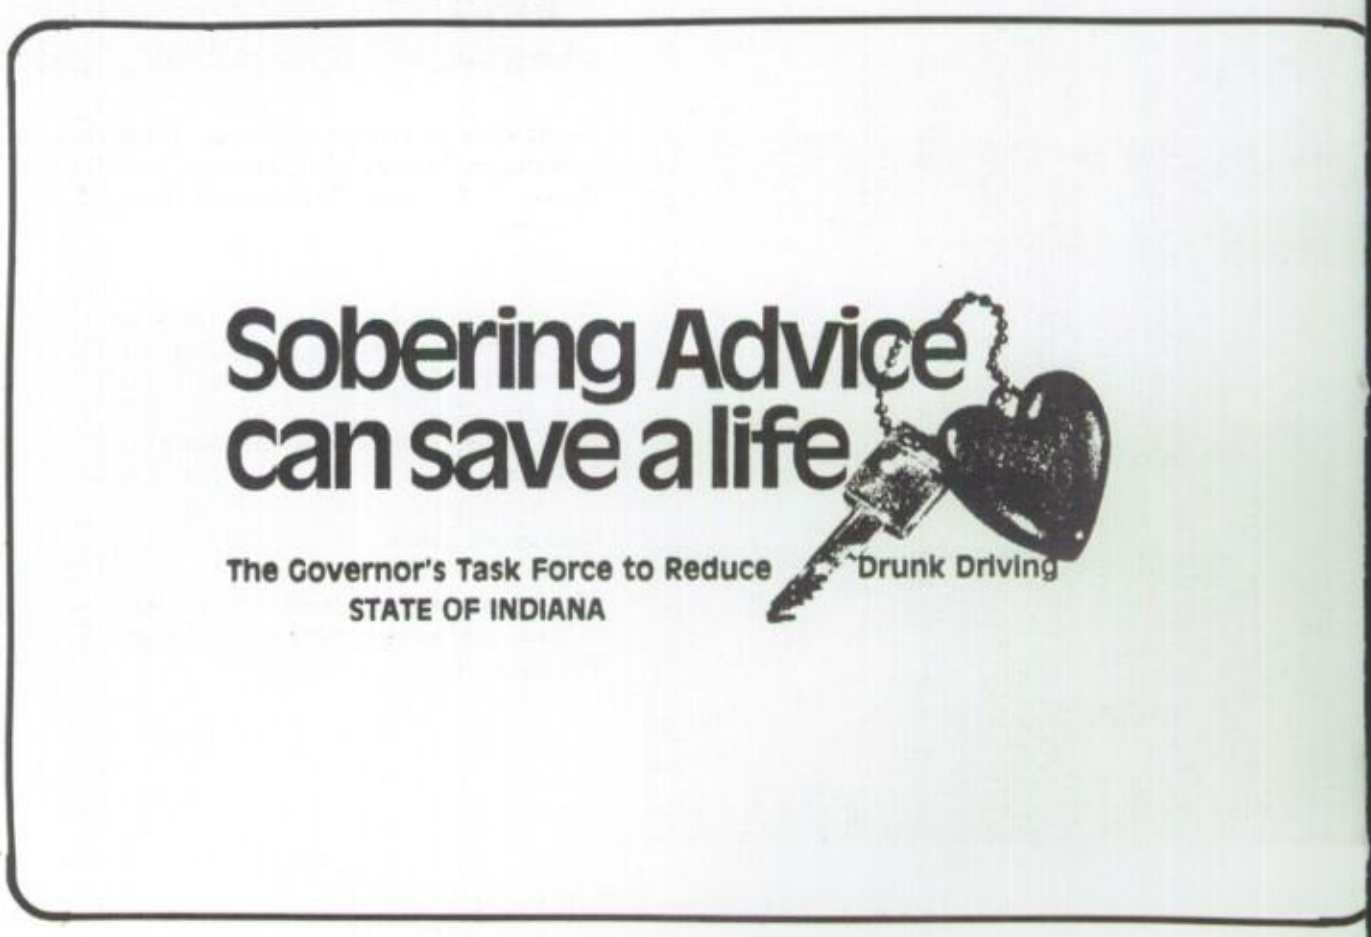
Key Club was a service club that was a part of Kiwanis. Key was involved in many activities during the year, which included cleaning the trophy cases in the high school and running a canned food drive before Christmas. The food the club members gathered was distributed to needy families in Brownsburg. The club met Wednesdays before school with the Kiwanis Club.

Diligence of service work Dung Nguyen and Steve Collisi take time to clean the trophy case.

SADD

SADD or Students Against Driving Drunk formed a chapter at BHS this year to make students aware of the dangers of driving drunk. Some of the members attended a convention which was sponsored by Governor Orr and his task force. At the convention, members heard speakers including Stephen Goldsmith, Marion County Prosecutor, and also Steve Alford, Indiana University basketball player.



STUDENT CONGRESS

Serving the community with dedication

The Student Congress was a busy sixth hour class, directed by Mrs. Moneymaker. The devoted students, who did not receive a credit for the class, organized activities for the school. These included Halloween and Valentine's Day dances and delivering Christmas baskets for the needy to help the cheer committee.

Oh my aching back! Melissa Patterson and Julie Schindler are tired from selling tickets to the Halloween dance.

DECA functioned only as a class this year and not as a club. It gave the students the opportunity to learn how businesses work through first hand experience. The students practiced what they had learned by selling candy bars during lunch hours on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The experience the students gained helped in preparing them for future jobs in the business world.

National Honor Society

National Honor Society, or NHS, came under new direction this year when Miss Vivian Hale took over for Mr. Godan. NHS is a group which recognized students who ranked in the upper one-fourth of their class and maintained a 3.0 grade point average. The club again sold red, white and pink carnations for students to send to their loved ones on Valentine's Day.

WRESTLETTES

Wrestlettes played an important part in the wrestling program here at BHS. Some of the duties the girls had included keeping score at meets and keeping the wrestlers' morale up. The girls also fixed high energy snacks, such as cookies and fruit roll-ups for the wrestlers to eat before their meets.

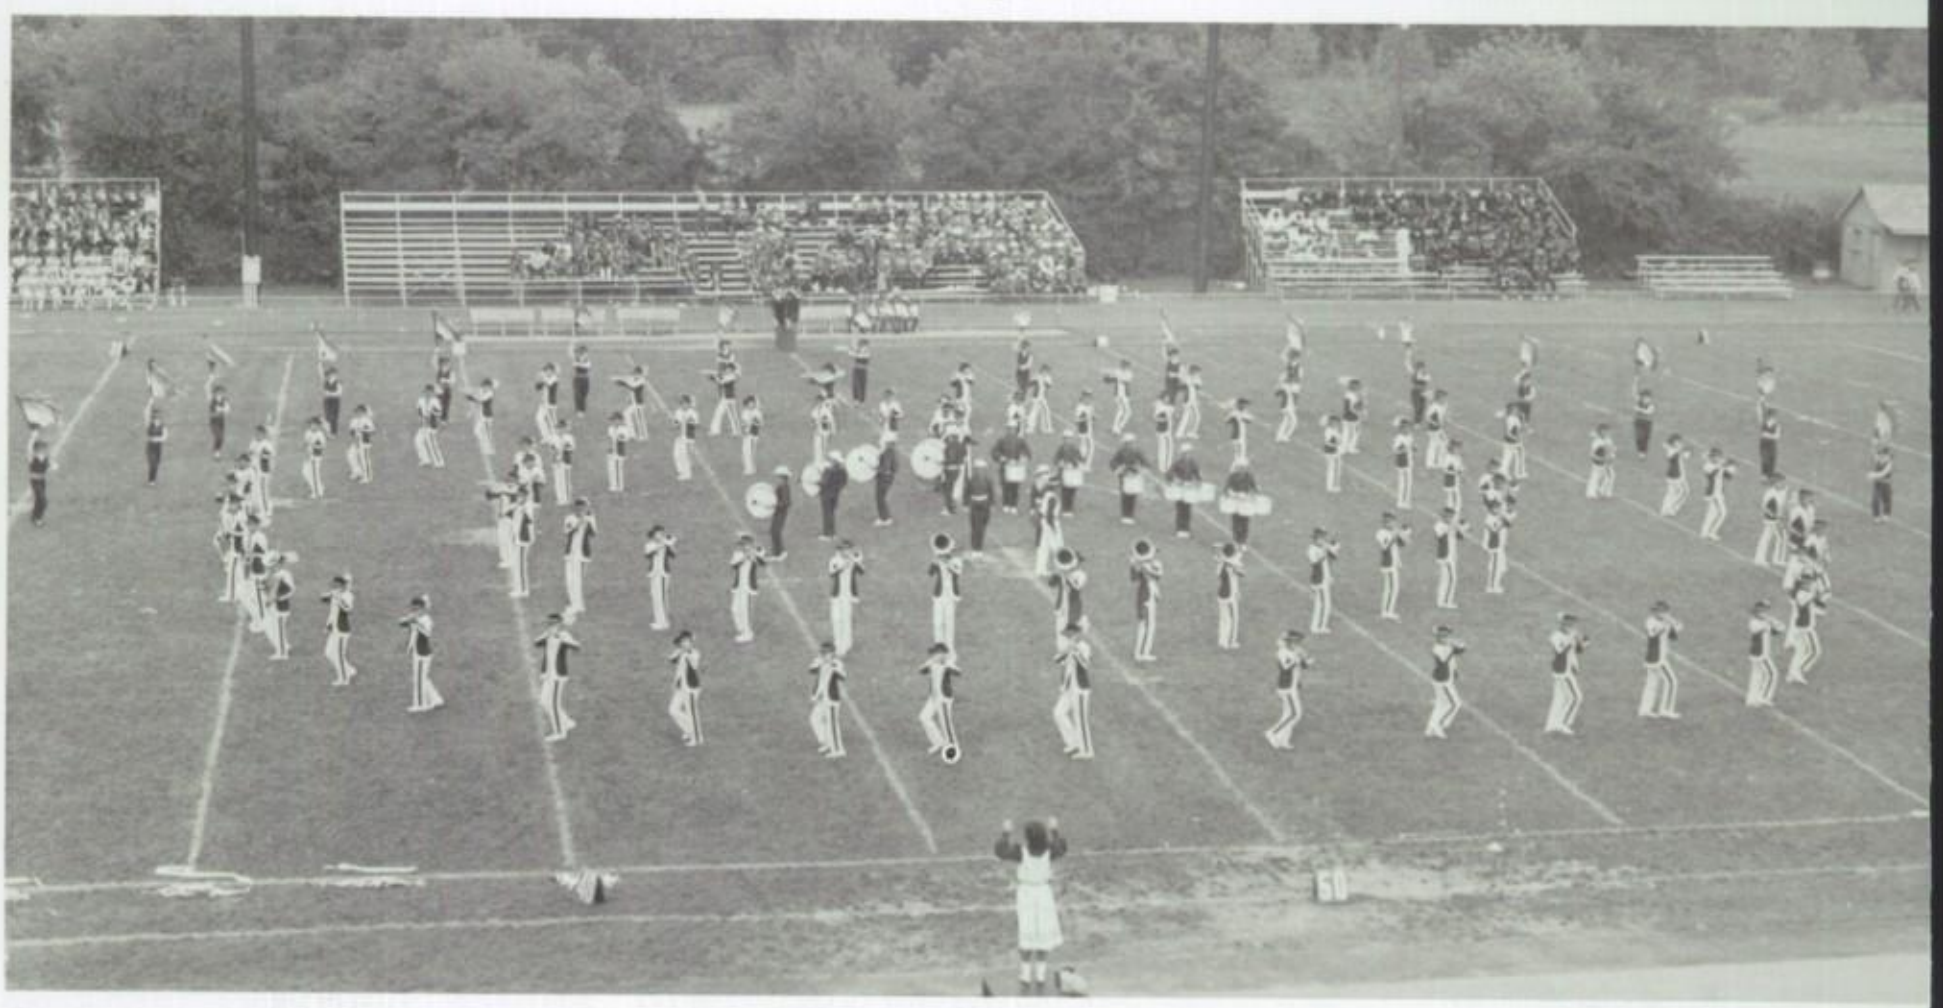
THE BANDS

Spirit makers at school, at games, and in competition



Carbon Copy Jennifer Vrabec, daughter of band director Joe Vrabec, learns the fundamentals of leading the band from Theresa Parker.

On the march Band members lead the way in arousing school spirit during the Homecoming parade.

Practice for the marching band started long before school began for the students. The practice paid off because the band received a first division rating in both the ISSMA District and Regional competitions. Even though the band did not receive enough points to continue in State competition, they scored one of the highest ratings they have ever received. Under the leadership of Theresa Parker and Jim Tolley, the band had an impressive season. They not only marched in the BOFF parade, 4th of July parade and the Homecoming parade, but they also played at all home games, the Sectional football game at Delta, the Regional game against Roncalli, the Semi-State at Boonville, and finally for State in the Hoosier Dome. To cap off the marching season, the band participated in the Marching Bands of America competition, also in the Hoosier Dome.

Score some more The band members do their part to urge on the Bulldogs and stir up the crowd.

Double Trouble Amy Bowling and Kristy Sommerville support the Bulldogs with their playing and smiles.

Concerts were a major part of the different bands' schedules. Concert band played at the Christmas and Spring concerts. Jazz band put on a pops concert and a jazz festival. To prepare for these and other concerts, the jazz band practiced before and after school. Concert band also played at graduation again this year. The pep band provided the entertainment at the basketball games during time outs, half time and before and after the game. The guard from the "Majestic Zone" really looked like they were from another planet because of their new costumes and the prop space ship they used. Both the guard and the band took a trip to Florida over spring break to perform at Walt Disney World. Both groups had an impressive year, and they did what they could to help promote school spirit.

We're loyal to you, BHS The band lends its support to the football team duing a pep session before the Roncalli game.

Be a Pepper! Kristy Sommerville and Jodi Patterson help boost spirits by playing in the pep band during a basketball game.

Personality Plus The Spotlight Singers and Co. "turn on" for the fall concert.

Perfection is achieved through practice, and all of the choirs spent many hours in class and after school doing just that. Some of the different choirs offered at BHS included Concert Choir, Choralaires, Sunshine Singers, Show Choir, and Madrigals. The Madrigals celebrated Christmas in a true medieval fashion, complete with costumes and a feast characteristic of the times. The Show Choir presented its annual concerts in the fall and at Christmas, climaxing these with the Spring Spectacular. These programs were the result of hours spent in an annual retreat as well as in and out of school hours. During these rehearsals they learned new choreography and technique. Choir members not only formed the core of the school musical, but they also participated in various individual and ensemble contests.

The Entertainer Amber Gossett expresses her feelings through song during a solo performance at a concert.

Expansions toward new horizons through experience

In only its second year of varsity competition, the soccer team finished with a .500 season, losing the Sectionals to Carmel by just one point. It was the first season for the reserve team which sported a record of 4 wins and 2 losses. Several members of the team had a chance to travel to Germany over spring break. This special team spent mornings in a camp run by West German national players and the rest of the time touring southern Germany. In addition, the players participated in four games in the Munich area. The one-week trip was sponsored by Indy Soccer International, affiliated with the International Sports Exchange.

SWIMMING

Hours of practice and miles of yardage pay off

With an 11-1-1 record, the girls' swim team ended a very successful season as both county and conference champs. New school, pool, county, and conference records were set as well as state cuts by Sarah DeBoy and Jennifer Fiste. Jennifer also had the distinction of being unbeaten in the 500 Free until final state competition. With nearly the whole team returning and with sectional Coach of the Year Linda Horn guiding them, the lady swimmers look forward to continuing their string of successes next season.

Ready for any occasion Freshmen Scott Davis prepares for a good return.

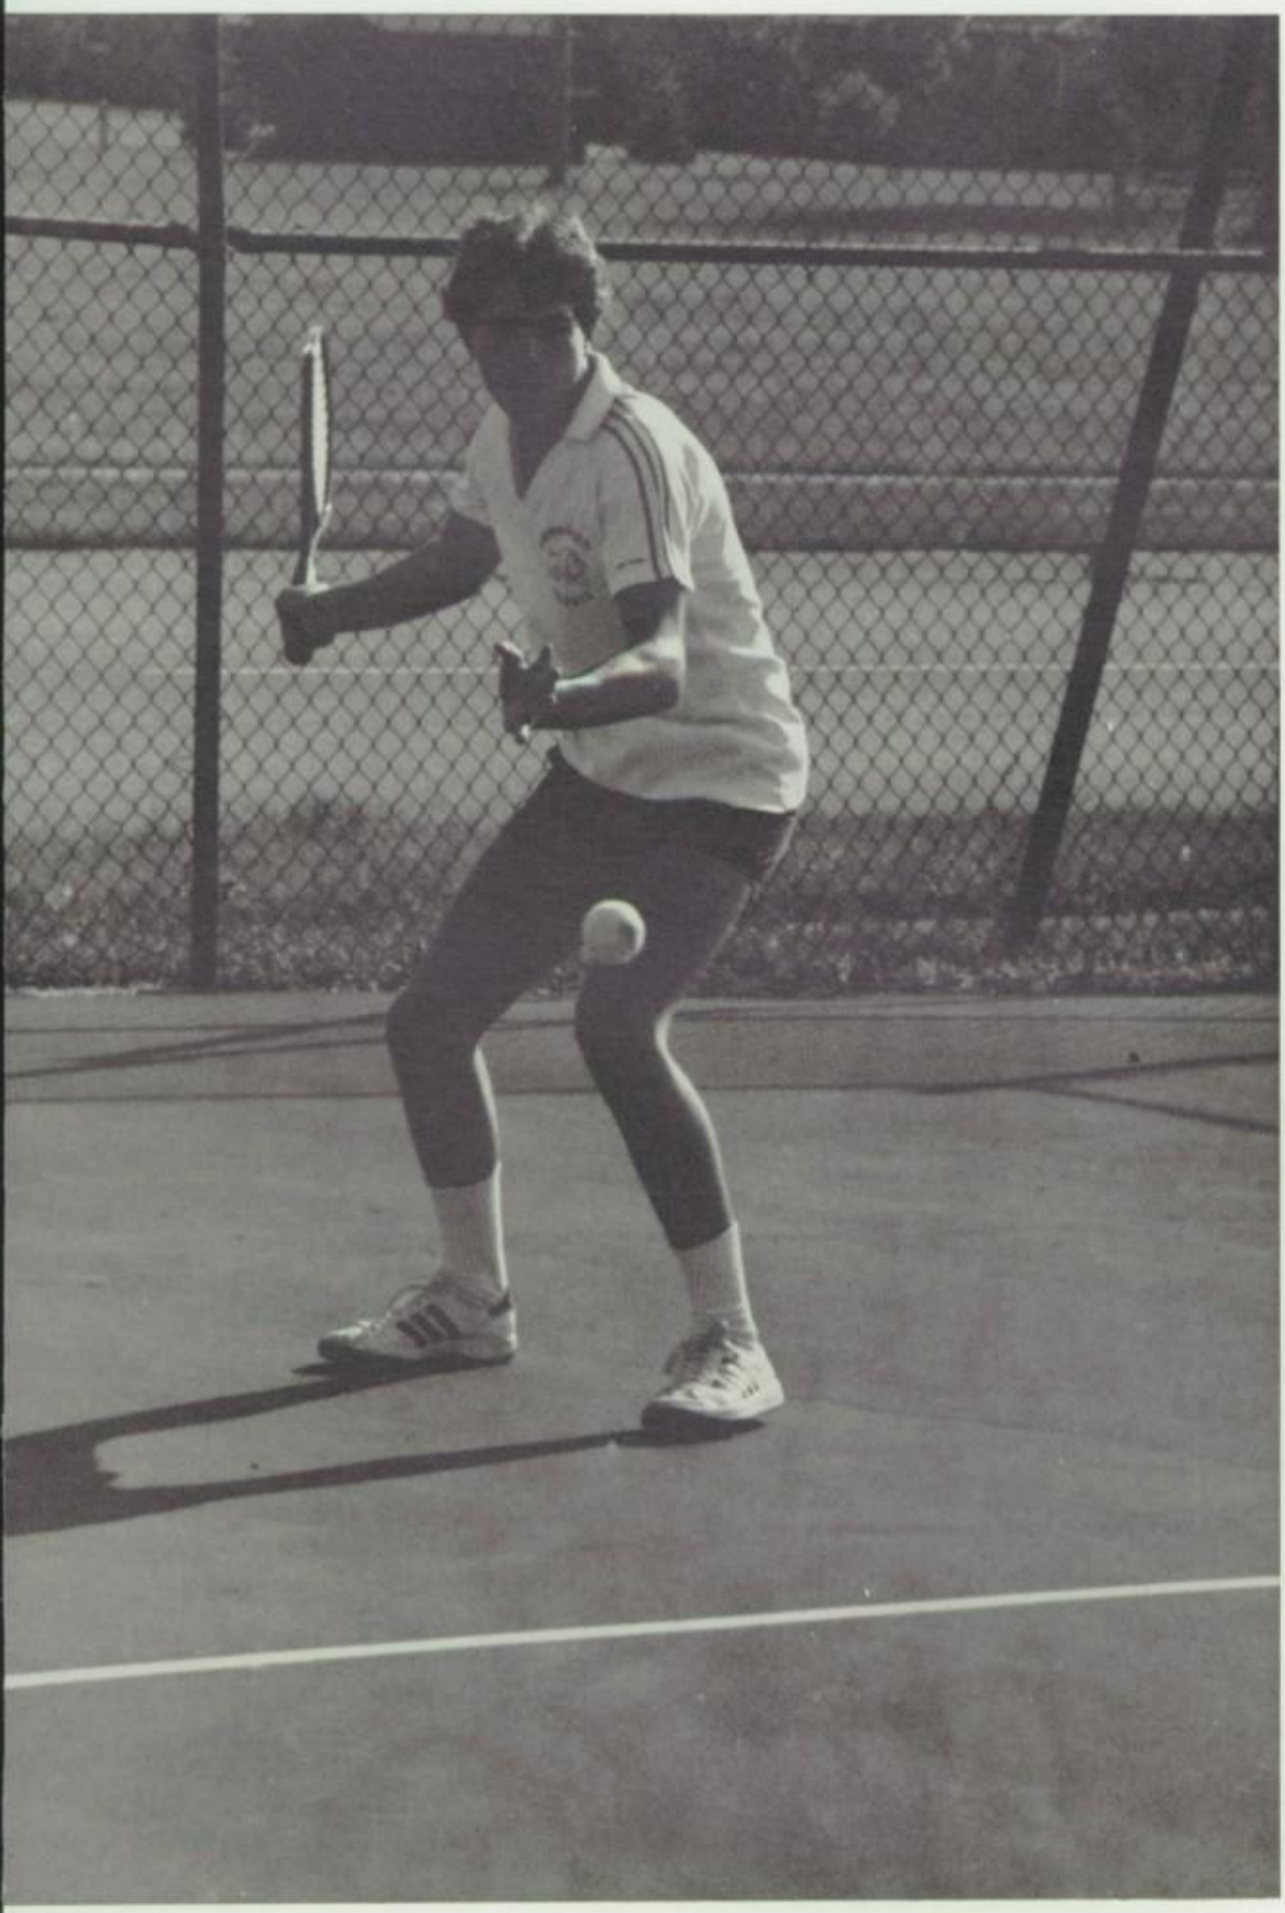
TENNIS

New coach, young team — a learning experience for all



Under the direction of new coach Dan Schermer, the boys' tennis team had a season of rebuilding. The team consisted mostly of freshmen and juniors with only one senior. The team produced an interesting fact; two sets of brothers played on the team — Darin and Bobby Archer, Tony and Chris Hill. Even though the team did not have the depth it needed for a successful season, each player showed potential and improved steadily as the season progressed.

Concentration Junior Todd Schermer appears to be concentrating on making a good forehand return.

Do I have the right racket? Junior Tim Eaton seems to be puzzling over his racket while junior Tony Hill looks the other way.

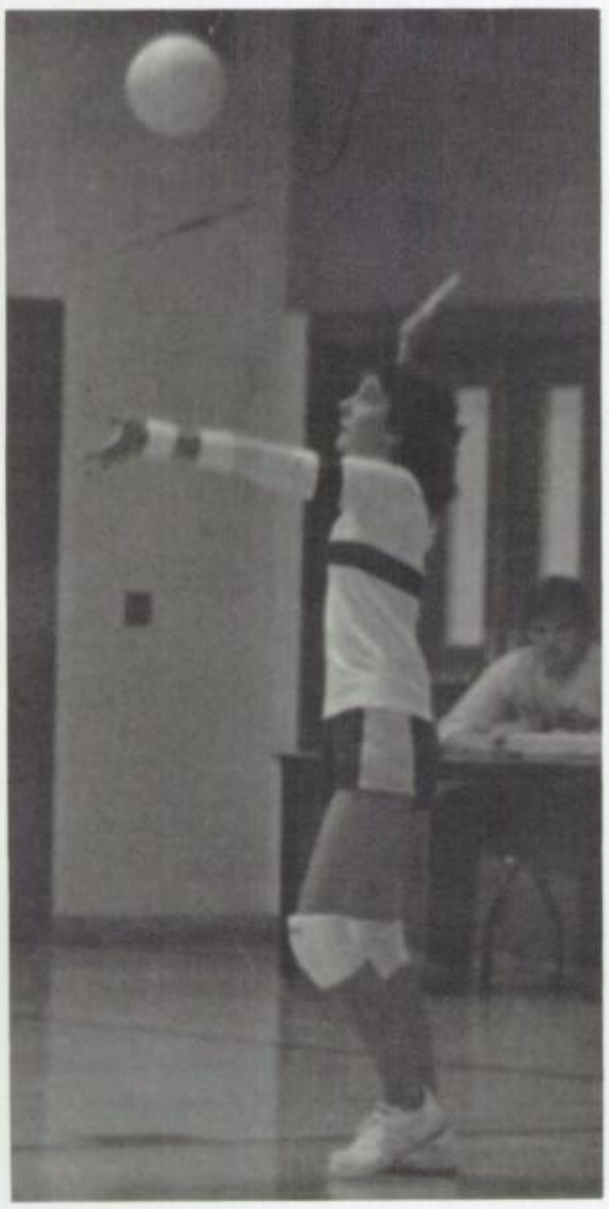
Gaining togetherness for future success

Frustration but enthusiasm described the volleyball season. Under the guidance of new coach Miss Day and with few returning players, the team gained much needed experience and the feeling of togetherness, an important necessity for a winning team. These attributes should be invaluable for next year's season.



Get Ready! Tracey Ramsey is ready to return the ball over the net.

CROSS COUNTRY

Setting the pace to be the very best in all they do

Under the leadership of senior captain Andy Edenburn, the boys' cross country team spent the season gaining experience. Even though the team had only three returning seniors, Troy Scott, Scott Shipley, and Andy Edenburn, both the varsity and reserve teams placed first out of sixteen teams in the Cascade Invitational and first out of six teams in both the Sagamore Conference and Hendrick's County meet. The top runner spot was held by David Sharpe while the most improved runner was Wayne Wolfe.

Running the extra mile through effort and determination

The girls' cross country team, under the leadership of Debbie McKenzie and Kim Grider, spent the year learning to improve style, while gaining valuable experience. Shari Edwards, who set a new school record, was joined by Kim Grider and Lucy Baumgartner in achieving good performances. An added feature of this year's team was the addition of two foreign exchange students, Maiji Haukatsalo and Kimiyo Oda.

Togetherness! The girls keep up front while running their meets.

Charge! The Dogs are prepared to battle for another victory.

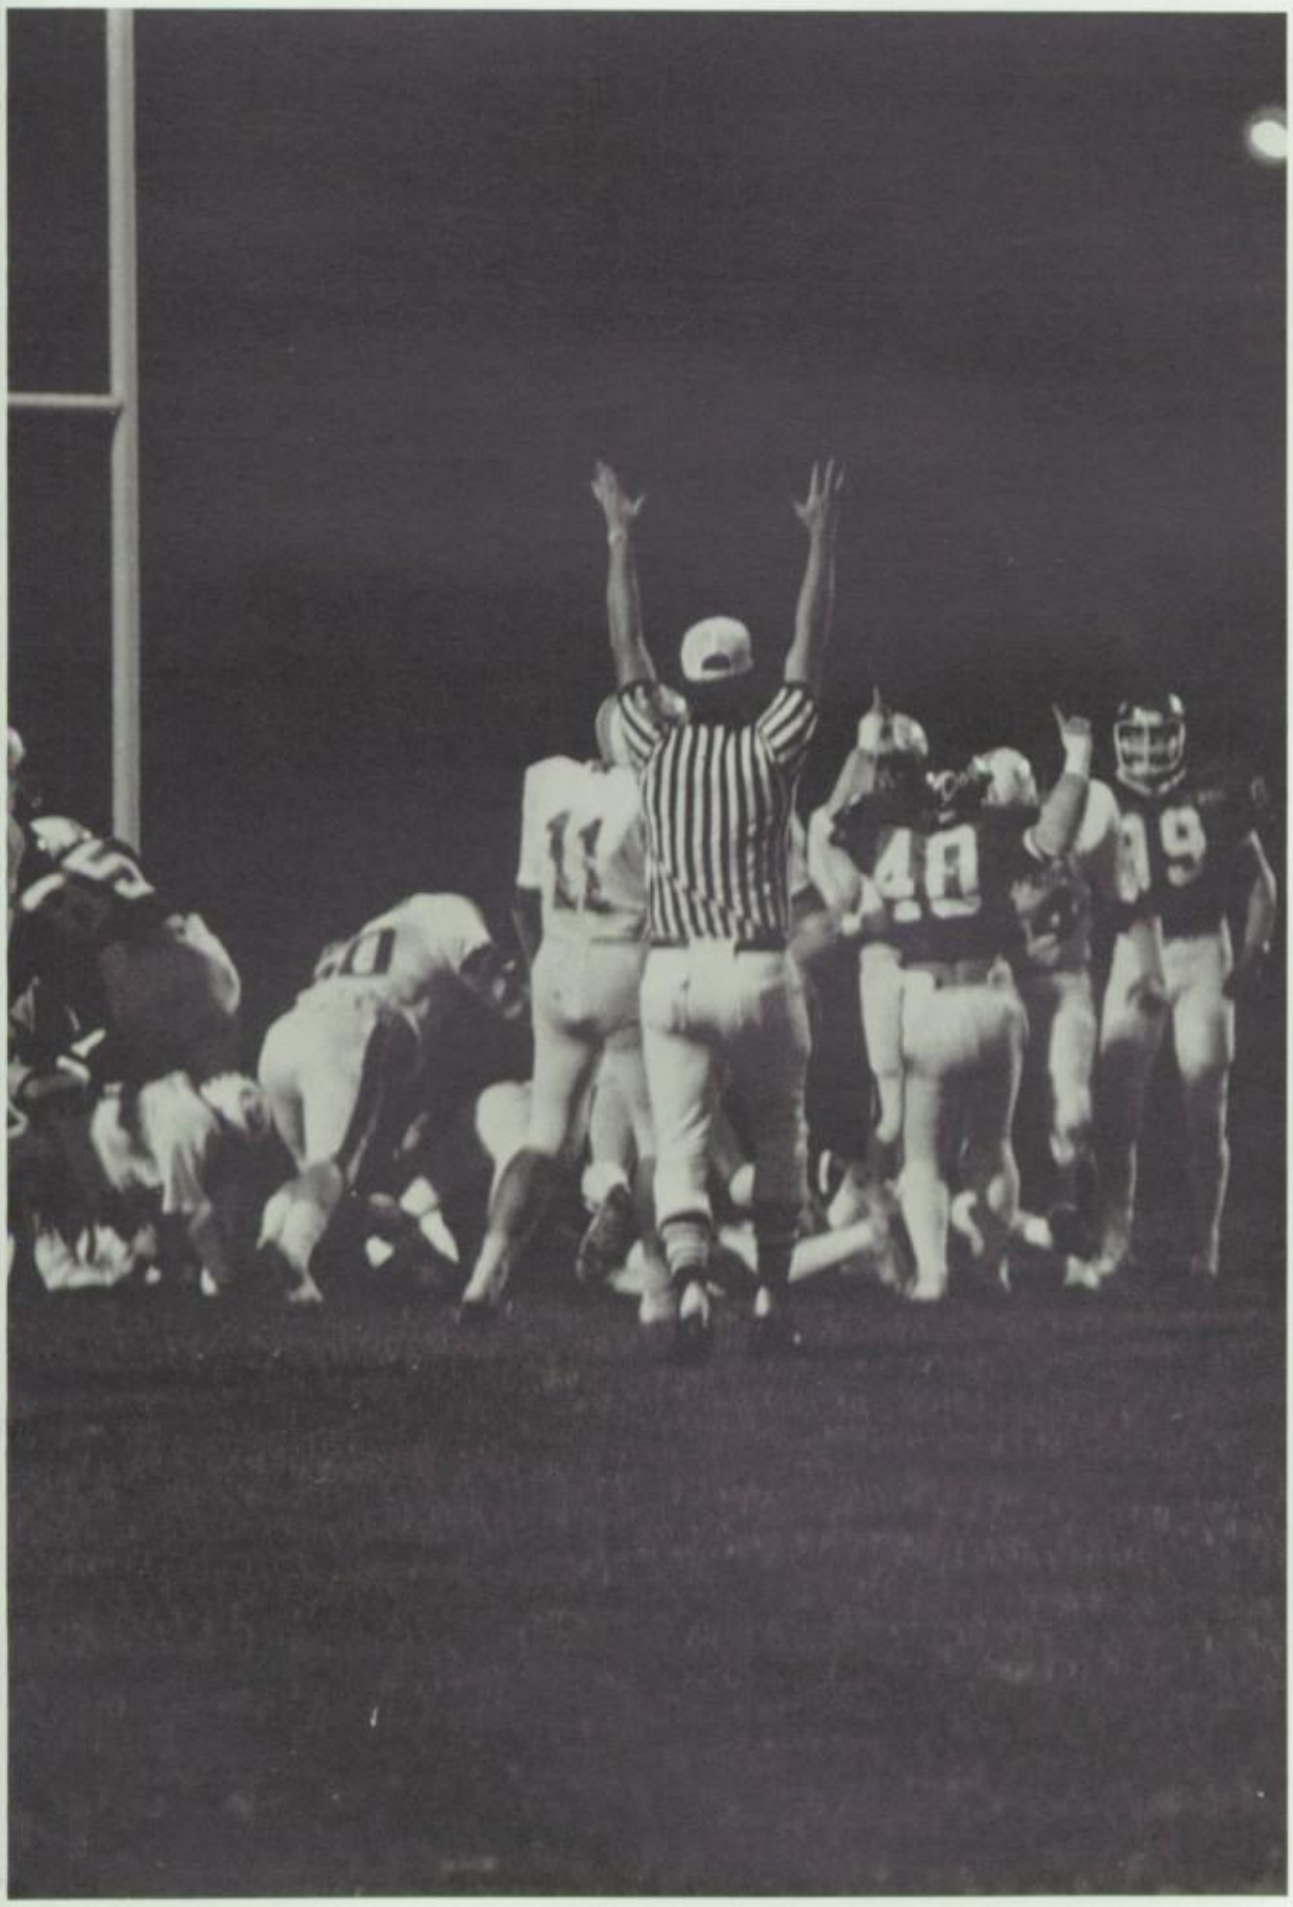
Dreams come true through persistence and dedication



Outstanding was one of the words used to describe the varsity Bulldogs' season this past year. The Bulldogs not only won the AAA State Championship, but they also won the Sagamore Conference by defeating Crawfordsville 10-7 in overtime and Cluster 25 by defeating Lafayette McCutcheon 26-0. The Dogs also had their first undefeated season in 10 years. The Dogs started out the season not even ranked in the AP and UPI polls, but by the end of the season they were ranked second behind Roncalli. The defensive unit had one of the best records in the state allowing their opponents to score only 86 points to 347 points. The offensive unit also had an impressive season considering how young they were. In the end, the Dogs proved they were number 1 in the state.

Another touchdown! Senior Mike Roseman gives the number one signal as the Dogs score six more points against Plainfield.

STATE CHAMPS

Dogs win it all with a 17-12 victory at the Dome

A popular phrase around BHS for most of the football season was HD-11-24-84-SC. The dream became a reality November 24th in the Hoosier Dome when the 13-0 Bulldogs met the 10-3 Concord Minutemen in the AAA State Championship. Even though the game started out slowly for the Dogs with the Minutemen scoring the first touchdown, Pat Thomas made a crucial play when he blocked the extra point. The next scoring drive came after linebacker Brett Sharar picked off a pass from Scott DeShone. The Dogs scored on a two yard run by Eric Birk, and Craig Horn kicked the extra point. The Dogs scored again before the half when Thomas intercepted a Concord pass at the Dogs 25 and returned the ball to the Minutemen 48. Horn then kicked a 28 yard field goal to give the Dogs a 10-6 lead at the half. When the Dogs started the third quarter, they proved there was no stopping them. The Dogs scored again in the third quarter when Dan Gatlin completed a pass to senior David Heck. Again the extra point counted, and the score was now 17-6. The Minutemen tried to rally in the fourth quarter when DeShone scored from just inches out. The Minutemen then tried to go for the two point conversion, but the attempt was blocked by the Dogs. The Dogs then got the ball, but were intercepted deep in Minutemen territory. The game reversed when David Glunt intercepted the ball with only 1:16 left to play. From then on, all Gatlin had to do was take the snaps, kneel, and run the clock out. Another popular saying around the school was "We Believe," and we did. 1984 will always be remembered as the year the Bulldogs brought the first State Championship to Hendrick's County.

CHEERLEADERS

Showing their support through spirit and enthusiasm

After 2 years of helping the cheerleaders promote school spirit, Mrs. Marcy Bloomer handed over her duties as cheerleading sponsor to a former Ball State University cheerleader Miss Sandy Cork. Mrs. Bloomer "retired" after the State Fair at which the varsity placed 5th and reserve placed 12th. Under Mrs. Bloomer's supervision, the varsity also placed 3rd at the Marion County fair and the reserve placed 1st at the Hendrick's County fair. Under Miss Cork's direction, the cheerleaders, both varsity and reserve, placed first in the Regional USCA Championships at I.U. This gave them the opportunity to compete in the National USCA Championships in Dallas, Texas December 28th and 29th with more than 2000 other cheerleaders. Although they did not place in the top ten, the girls represented Indiana very well and gained valuable experience in a variety of styles.

BASKETBALL

The varsity basketball season started almost two weeks later than originally planned due to the extended football season. When the season finally did open, it began in a newly remodeled gym. Some of the changes included the addition of ceiling fans to reduce heat problems and the addition of a hallway on the south side of the gym to separate Lincoln Elementary school from the varsity gym. With only two seniors returning to the team this year the 'Dogs had a season of rebuilding. They got off to a slow start losing their first two games, but they then went on to win the next two to even their record at 2-2. In the county tourney the 'Dogs were able to knock out Danville in the first round but were unable to hold Cascade off in the second round. They received a rare honor when they became one of the first high school teams to try out the new basketball court in the Hoosier Dome. This honor made Brownsburg the first team to have played both basketball and football in the Dome and won.

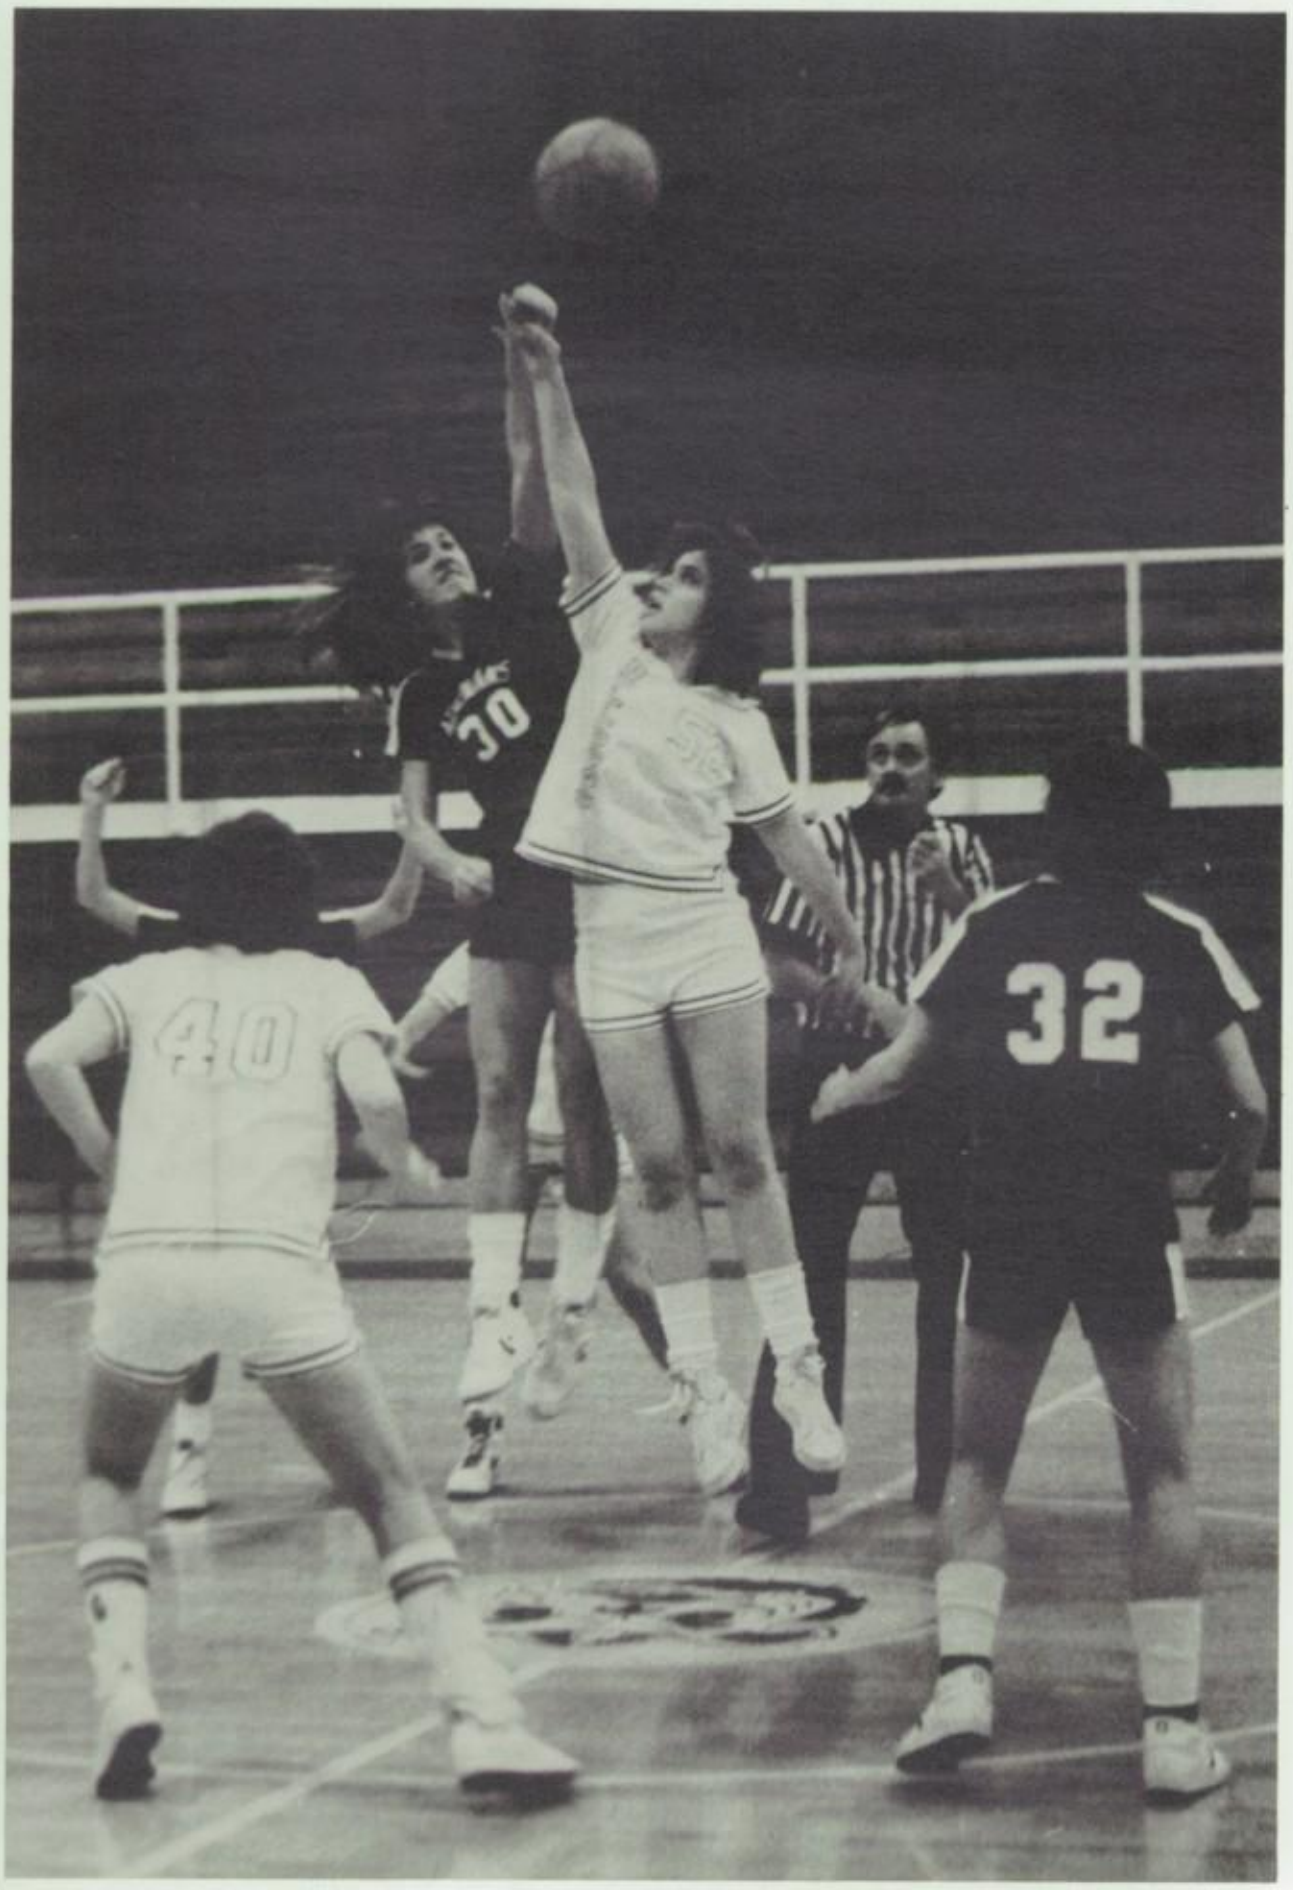
BASKETBALL

Showing continued improvement throughout the season



Having only two seniors returning to the girls' basketball team this year meant the Lady Bulldogs would have to rely heavily on the underclassmen who were mostly sophomores. The team finished the year with a 6-12 record, but the girls gained experience and knowledge with each game. One of the team's triumphs was placing second in the Pike Tournament. Senior Kim Lagle, who was co-captain of the lady 'Dogs along with senior LeAnn Burks, led the team in scoring with a 13 point average per game.

SWIMMING

Achieving success by accepting challenges

With no seniors on the team the juniors accepted the responsibility of teaching the freshmen the pain of hard work and the thrill of victory. The team spent long hours before and after school practicing, but all the hard work paid off when all the members of the team earned a place in either finals or consolations at conference. The 400 meter relay team of Smalley, Bettner, Hogan and Johnson was seeded second at conference. The hard work also paid off when the team placed third in the Beech Grove Invitational. Because many of the swimmers and divers turned in outstanding performances throughout the season, it was a difficult task to select one outstanding member.

Isn't he cute! co-captain Tim Brown sports the new look for the county swim meet.

USO? an "unidentified swimming object" sprints as the 'Dogs take to the water.

WRESTLING

Points, take downs, pins — the outcome of a year's hard work

The wrestlers had an impressive season this year. They not only won the county title and the '85 Sagamore Conference but they also placed second in the Brownsburg Invitational. This was the second year in a row that the 'Dogs took both county and conference. Bad weather delayed the start of Sectionals; but when the tournament finally did take place, the 'Dogs placed second with nine wrestlers advancing to Regionals. The nine included seniors Brian Diebold, Mike Roseman, Tim Brackin; juniors Tony Hill, Tim Price; sophomores Scott Meyer, Josh Holston; freshmen John Jarosinski and Jeff Schaekel.

THE REVETILLE

Vol. 20 No. 13 Brownsburg High School 1090 S. Odell May 17, 1985

Inside...

Read what seniors willed the underclassmen and what the underclassmen wished the seniors.

Money 'leaves' us with trees

"The trees are nice, but I don't think that they are worth $7,000."

"Why couldn't they have used the money for something more important like books?"

If you have been in the halls of BHS lately, you have probably heard these and many other complaints about the new trees planted around the school.

We, the Reveille staff, fully support the administration in its decision to plant the trees.

First, the money that was used to buy the trees came from a fund separate from the General Fund. This fund, the Construction and Accumulated Building Fund, is used specifically for landscaping and the construction of new buildings, such as the new locker rooms by the football field. The money from this fund cannot be used to buy books or pay teachers' salaries.

The planting of the trees was part of a plan begun two years ago to remodel and relandscape all the schools, including the elementary schools, the junior high, and the high school. The total cost for the entire project was $12 to 13 million. Consequently, when the $7,000 paid for the trees is compared to the total cost, $7,000 is not a lot of money.

The trees should generate pride in the school. If the outdoor appearance of the school is improved, both the student body and the community of Brownsburg will feel more pride in the school. Hopefully, this will also reduce the incidents of vandalism done to the trees.

The purchasing of the trees was not something the administrators just suddenly decided to do. Planning began two years ago, and the project is expected to last another five to ten years.

The administrators took several things into consideration when the trees were purchased. First, they considered the cost. They also considered how quickly the trees would grow. Next, they looked for trees that had something to do with the state of Indiana.

Basically, they tried to get "the most trees for the money," said Miss Kathleen Corbin, acting principal.

For example, the administrators chose to buy only a few tulip trees, the Indiana state tree, because they were very expensive. On the other hand, many Hawthorne trees were purchased because they were less expensive, and the Hawthorne tree is one that is very common to Indiana.

We applaud the administration for improving the quality of the education we are receiving and the quality of our surroundings while we are learning.

SINCE MONEY DOESN'T grow on trees, do you think the trees are worth $7,000? Read the editorial and decide for yourself.

Ask Amy...

By Amy Walters

Q. Why did they start charging admission to track meets? Are they going to charge for all athletic events?

A. According to Mrs. Marsha Dueker, athletic office treasurer, to run a track meet efficiently you need workers and the little money they do get is used to pay the workers. Extra money is also put toward expenses for the track team.

As of now they are not going to charge for all athletic events, but they do charge for the following: basketball, football, swimming, track, volleyball, and wrestling.

Q. Why were the senior privileges taken away?

According to Mr. Jim Acton, asst. principal, recommendations were obtained and decisions were made on the senior privileges at a meeting of the class sponsor, principal, and clas officers at the beginning of the year. Mr. Acton said, "Nothing has been changed. We have known the rules all along, but maybe the students haven't known."

Mr. Acton also said the principal and class sponsor decide what should be added or deleted from the privileges from the year before.

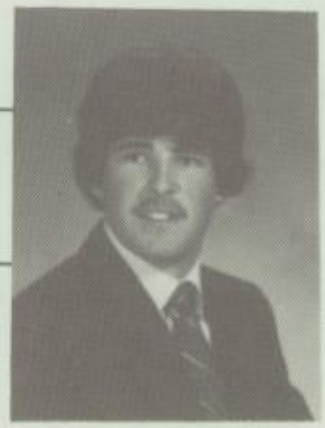
Seniors reveal crazy times

By Jenny Roseman and Amy Walters

Have you ever done anything crazy, unusual, or outrageous during your high school years? Here, eight seniors reveal their wild times at BHS.



BRAD VESCOVI, "When I put a Hustler Magazine article in Beth Briley's folder in Mr. Conner's class."

PAULA WILLIAMS, "When I stood up on a table at Pizza Hut and danced to'The Stroke' my freshman year."

KERRI RIDENOUR, "WHEN I was giving the wrong speech for ten minutes in junior English."

JAY ALEXANDER, "WHEN I was in Florida I spent the night in the bathtub with shaving cream all over my face."

MIKE ROSEMAN, "MINE was when I walked out of the locker room naked."

THERESA PARKER,"I lost my voice before a band contest and since I couldn't yell, everyone in the stands thought I was a mute."

BRIAN DIEBOLD,"ASKING Mr. Bivens who his hair stylest was and passing out Mr. Bivens look-a-like pictures, "The King."

LISA RICHWINE, "WHEN I wore my bra on the outside of my shirt and I flashed people in the hall."

Rob Stanley hopes for career in sprint car racing

By Becky Arnett

There is a possible "Indy 500" winner at BHS; junior Rob Stanley said that some day he would like to race, "either in the Indy 500 or Daytona 500," but for now he is content with sprint-car racing.

Rob, who started racing quarter midgets, which are similar to go-carts, when he was six, now races sprint cars.

Although he has only been racing sprint cars, which have no fenders, for one year and four races, Rob has already been named "Rookie of the Year" at the track in Paragon, Indiana. He said that kids are even starting to ask him for his autograph.

Rob said his parents, who own their own business which builds quarter midgets, encouraged him to race when he was little. Now, he said he races for the excitement.

Although he doesn't get scared, Rob said he does become nervous before each race. He said the cars travel around 120 mph. Rob doesn't have anywhere to practice between races, but he has only wrecked twice. Once he hit another car, flipped and then destroyed his car. Rob said that he walked away from the accident with red eye, a condition in which the blood vessels in the eyes break and cause the whites to turn red. His car that was destroyed was rebuilt by Rob and his dad Ron, and then resold.

The initial investment on Rob's new car was $26,000 for the body and motor. Rob said, "I have a sponsor in California who supplies me with parts for the car."

Both moral and financial support are supplied by Rob's parents who accompany him to all of his races. Rob said that they transport his car in a rebuilt ambulance. He said that racing has taken him to such places as Paragon, Kokomo, Bloomington, and Putnamville, Indiana. He has also raced in Ohio, Florida, and Pennsylvania.

Although he has only won four heat races thus far, he said he thinks he has done rather well considering that the men he races against are sometimes 20 to 30 years older than he is. He said that many of these men have been racing sprint cars for many years.

Rob, who was known as the "Sixteen-year-old Sensation" on the racing circuit last year, said, "I plan on racing sprint cars professionally after I finish school." Sprint car racing season started April 6 and ends in late September, according to Rob.

Class Notes

THE LIBRARY will be open until May 30, but two-week books can only be out until May 20. After May 20, two-week books will be charged the same as overnight books.

If underclassmen still have books out at the end of the year, they will be charged next year.

If seniors have fines or books out, they will have a letter sent to their parents telling them to pay the fine and return the books.

Fernando experiences American lifestyle

By Maija Haukatsalo

Fernando Martinez is a 19-year-old, dark-haired senior from Monterey, a northern town in Mexico. He is staying his six months in the U.S. with the Prairie family, who don't have children.

Fernando said that he is missing his family (mom, dad, three sisters, brother, and two dogs) and is looking forward to going back home. He said that he will maybe take a summer course in English before going. Or, if not, he said laughing, that he will sleep.

Fernando also said, that he is waiting to graduate with the senior class in a week. Wearing a cap and gown will be a new experience for him because he said, that at home they wear suits.

Fernando said, that being able to drive and own a car at home makes it easier to meet friends and do more things. He said, that he enjoys being with friends and also likes swimming and playing tennis. He was on the soccer team at home last year.Fernando said he enjoys going out to eat and watching baseball games.

He said he likes listening to music and that the music is generally the same as in Mexico and here.

He said he likes buying American clothes and said that the fashion is basically the same. At home he always goes to Texas to buy clothes because it's so close. About Brownsburg, Fernando said he likes being here, but in Mexico it's warmer and they don't have as much snow as here.

When he goes back to Mexico this summer, he said he wants to go to college and major in accounting. Here he is taking U.S. government, computers and economics. He said, "school is okay."

Fernando said that the people are the best thing in here and that they are very nice and friendly.

Turning 18 in Mexico means a lot to a teenager. "Then you can do whatever you want," he said. And he means that you can go to night clubs, drink, and vote. When you are 14 or 15 you can drive a car, he said. "If you really want to."

When Fernando came here he didn't know English very well, but now he thinks he talks pretty well.

Stories behind names

By Maija Haukatsalo

Asking the following students and one faculty member about the stories behind their names or how they got them, they told these stories:

LISSA EDEN, FRESHMAN - "When my mom was little she wrote a story about a girl name Lissa. " That's how they named her Lissa.

KIRSTEN KAPITAN,FRESHMAN -"My parents watched a movie the day my dad proposed to my mom. I got my name from that movie."

VIC OVERMAN, ATTENDANCE OFFICER- "My uncle fought in World War I and after we won he said, that next boy will be named after the victory, and it was me."

ANDY RAMSEY, JUNIOR - "I got my name after the President Andrew Jackson."

PAT WOODS, JUNIOR - "I was born on St. Patrick's Day so my parents named me Patrick."

RONETTA STOCKING, SENIOR -"My parents wanted a name after my grandmother (Mayetta), my mother (Bobetta) and my father (Ronald) So they came up with Ronetta"

Last, first names make fun games

By Maija Haukatsalo

Searching for the longest and the shortest names this year at school, Charles Kenneth Crawford, junior , has the longest in boys and Michele Hollingsworth, senior, in girls.Freshmen and sophomores take the award for the shortest names at BHS. They are: sophomores Ann Jean, Tai and Lan Tran and freshmen Jim Beck, Dan Cull and Tom Hunt.

Two of the most common last names are Jones and Lewis. Joneses include senior Melissa, juniors Leigh and Scott, sophomores Doug, Michael and Steve, and freshmen Angie and Tracee.

Lewises are senior Clifford Wayne and Kimberly, sophomores Angela, Betty, Stacy and Todd, and freshmen Carrie, Lisa and Ryan. Other popular last names are Moore and Wilson. Wilson was the most common last name two years ago.

The most common first names this year are Michael (27) and Michelle (20). There are also many Timothys (17) and Kimberlys(16).

Professions

Some students have professions as their last names. Heading the list are the Archers, junior Darrin and freshman Bobby. (Get it? Archers = arrow shooters.)

Then there is Baker, freshmen Andy, Laura, and Ray

Bishops are senior Juli and juniors Jerilyn and Joanne.

Millers are seniors Beth, Bobbi and Greg, junior B. Keith, sophomore Susan and freshmen Michael, Stephanie and Kim.

Taylors are seniors Michael, Teresa and Flavia, junior Brian and sophomore Kim.

Then we have the more unusual professions like Foreman (Jim, sophomore) and Mason (Mike, sophomore), Moneymaker Stacie, freshman) and Huntsman (Carrie, freshman).

A variety of unique names are among our student body, such as Gwynethe (Tust, freshman); Iliana (Sueiras, junior); Gaye (Unruh, sophomore); and Marius (Schumacher, German exchange student and senior). There are also several pleasant-sounding first names like seniors Cami (Jacko), Jyoti (Patel), Mindra (Powers); juniors Jerome (McClung), Valerie (Tri) and Bryanna (West); sophomores Jarod (Alderson), Claudia (Gilmore), Candace (Marsh); and freshmen Rochelle (Cunning) and Yvonne (Truitt).

The following are a list which the seniors have bequeathed to underclassmen. They have willed their most valuable traits, and items they are leaving behind so that memories of the Class of '85 will live on forever.

Last Will

I, BECKY ARNETT, do hereby bequeath the following: To Scott, James, and the Reveille staff, a great year without me. It will be hard, but try. To Betsy Steele I leave my seat on the bus and all of the importance that goes with it. To Mrs. Huber, Leamon, Hines and office ladies, someone just like me! To Mrs. Levin, I leave an autographed copy of my autobiography. And lastly, to Lisa (Baby Steu), Steuerwald, I leave my great driving abilities and a four-speed car!!

I, JENNIFER BALDWIN, being of sound mind and perfect body, will Janiey Smith two more great years in Alcatraz. Good luck in your golfing career. Maybe you'll get another hole in one.

I, KIM BROWN, being of sound mind and body, hereby dedicate: my typing ability to Lori Seals; my locker space to my brother, Bob; my driving ability to Stacey Ward; and the ability to get through their senior years to Tim Pacey and Jenny Burden. And last, but not least, my everlasting love to Mr. Jeff Seals.

I, MARIE DEAN, will Rhonda M. my car with which she can be my taxi driver to get me home when I can't.

I, KEITH FREIJE, hereby will the following: to my beloved Lisa, the ability to cause as much trouble as I did, and my love forever.

I, SHAWN GILLIGAN, will to Missy Albrecht my profound ability to pick up guys (like Igor) and my ability to relieve myself with gracefulness. To Missy Magee, I will my ability to grocery shop and my ability to drive carefully. To both, I will my singing talents.

I, KATHY GNALL, will to Rebecca Need a great senior year and all the fun I had at 8. To Sandy and Jennifer, great senior years and a bib for Jen. To Woo, the ability to last 3 more years, and to next year's yearbook staff, good luck.

I, KIMBERLY A. GRIDER, will Missy Albrecht and Marci McDonald my scholastic and athletic ability. I also will my great drivingability and my wonderful laugh to Missy Albrecht. I am leaving my world-class running ability to Lucy Baumgartner. And to Jenny Simmons,the ability to stand on two feet during a race. Last of all, I am leaving Susan Miller and Sam Ashby my ability to stay quiet in parking lots and my ability to stay out of trouble with oscifers. Good luck!!

I, ANITA HARPER, will my cousin Lori Endicott love, life, happiness and a lot of parties!!!

I, DEBORAH D. HOUSTON, will Julie Houston all the good times that I have had during my four years in high school. I also will her Alibi's Gem. Take good care of my "Poor, Poor Alibi's" while I am away. Love, Deb

I, LISA HUMMEL, will all the fun and all my folders, paper, and pencils that I saved thinking "I can use these next year so I don't have to buy new ones" to my little brother and sister as they finish and start their journeys through this strange place. Good luck always, Love, LKB.

I, RODGER KATTER, will Michelle all the fun I've had. I also will you an open hand to walk to class with. Kepp your head and heart high. I also will you all the special times you've given me. I will my sister, Becky, all the luck and fun I've had at BHS. I also will you both bathrooms and the phone all to yourself. Keep up the good work. Remember big brother loves you.

I, WENDY KONERMAN, will to my l'il sis, KIMI, my great ability to have fun and not get into too much trouble. Also, my and Cindy S.'s abilities to save L.K. caps!!!!!!I also will to you the great ability to total cars and bring everyone out alive!

I, WENDY KONERMAN and I, CINDY SHOCKLEY, will to Chris Ryan and Kevin Rairdon (our locker buds) our two lockers so they can have all the junk we have collected over the years! Then, next year, they can will it to someone else!

I, KIM LAGLE, will Toni Jo three more fun years in high school and a new laugh. I will James Lyle, my little brother, John, and my golfing ability. I will Tracy Ramsey my muscles, height, and a can of spinach. I will "Flip" a safety pin for those unexpected disasters while jumping rope.

I, BOBBI MILLER, will next year's Reveille staff the return of Mr. Randy Jackson, but if no luck, I will you the patience to put up with all the excuses! I will Gary Leach my great driving abilities (chains) and my patience to make decisions when they are needed. I wil I you some "FREETIME" to accomplish the things you need to do . Most of all, I hope you have a great SENIOR year! To Chris Shutt, I wi!l my perfect attendance and all of my bad habits! (for now!) I will Michelle Garringer all of the good times that your sister and I had together during our high school years. I will Sandy Ballard the ability to drive better than her sister. I will James Crawford a full year without getting kicked out, and lastly, I will Mr. Bennett a great senior DECA class as we once were!

I, MICHELLE MONNETT, will to Tina Holmes, my ability to be an airhead without trying. Also, my luxury "spot" car, and a great senior year! To Christine, I will the ability to get to school on time. To Jenny, the ability to change a flat tire or two or three. To both Jen and Chris, all the best times they could possibly have in the next three years.

Eighty seniors end their Follies with farewell song and tears

WE ARE THE CLASS WE ARE THE SENIORS

By Jon Acton

There comes a time, when we have to graduate
When our class must come together as one
There are people crying, oh, and it's time to lend a hand
To life, the greatest gift of all
We keep on believing day by day
That one of us will someday make a change
We're all a part of God's great big family, and
The truth, you know, we are on our way

We are the class, we are the Seniors, we are the ones
To make a brighter day, so let's start giving
It's time to graduate, we're saying our good-byes,
It's true we'll make a better day, the Class of '85

Well, we've given our hearts, so you know that we care,
And our lives will be stronger and free–
As God has shown us, by turning stone to bread,
And so we all must lend a helping hand.

When you're down and out, and there seems no help at all,
But if you just believe, there is no way we can fall,
We realize that success can only come,
When we stand together as one.

The words of "We Are the Seniors" were written by Jon Acton, senior class president, to be sung to the tune of "We Are the World" because he said he likes the music and thought the song would capture the spirit of Senior Follies.

SPORTS SHORTS

By Andy Baldwin

18 brave souls signed up for the first annual White Lick Slam-Dunk contest; a contest not too well organized, but still a relative success. Other than the 18 participants, around 50 people came to watch the greatest spectacle (almost) in Brownsburg.

Each participant was put in a bracket (similar to the way the NCAA basketball tournament is set up) and each competed against one another one-on-one.

In the first round, each participant had to make one gorilla jam and one aerial jam. The gorilla jam was to show power, while the aerial jam (which required a half-twist) was to show finesse.

Each jam was rated on a scale from 0-10. Zero points was awarded for a missed jam, but each participant was allowed one miss per round. A person was rated on his showmanship, athletic ability, and originality. The three judges were me, senior Greg Miller, and sophomore Brian Whittle.

There was only one major upset in the first round of play; BHS Varsity roundballer Darrin Archer, junior, was defeated by the underdog Rodney Robbins. Archer missed his first jam, but still had his chance to make the required two. His second jam was successful, but his third missed, therefore Robbins moved on in the tournament.

Archer meanwhile tried to persuade the judges to start a tournament for the losers.

Only one person got really upset, that was freshman Andy Watson, a first round loser to eventual winner Brad Ward, senior. Watson jumped up and down in his nylon knit hat saying that the contest was rigged, but it was Watson who had offered the judges $5 to score him high enough to defeat Ward.

The rest of the rounds of play were the same as the first, except the participants could try any jam that they wanted. Needless to say, originality was rated very high in the rest of the tournament.

The final round pitted seniors Brad Ward and Todd Jackson in a closely contested match. Ward won the contest by two points with the only perfect score of the day; he ran and jumped in the air, put the ball between his legs then powered it in for a score of 30.

Some other good jams were made by Scott Jones, junior, who almost tore the rim off on a perfectly executed but missed dunk. Doug Wilkerson, senior, placed fourth, but very well could've placed higher if he could have hit his original dunks.

I'd like to thank everyone who participated, and watched. A special thanks goes to photographer James Leier who lost the photos of the contest.

Next year, if a slam-Dunk Contest is held, I think an under six-foot and an over six-foot category should be provided, so everyone could have a fair chance.

A FINAL NOTE ON SPORTS SHORTS

For three years now I've written this column, and through my efforts I hope that I've entertained, yet also informed you about sports.

During those three years I've challenged girls in basketball, and track. I've wrestled a varsity wrestler, and been in the locker room of the Purdue Boilermakers, and of the Chicago Knockers (women's mud-wrestling team).

Though I had fun writing these stories, I never lost aim of the goal to entertain the reader. Hopefully, my writing days will not end, but I can fulfill my dreams of becoming a sports columnist for some publication.

Good luck to everyone, and remember the saying that has helped me during high school, "if you can't be an athlete, be an athletic supporter."

Famous 500 fan arrives first each year

By Bobbi Miller

You may have read about 87-year-old Larry Bisceglia in Guinnes' World Book of Records or maybe in Ripley's Believe It Or Not! But if you live in Indianapolis, you may have just seen him as you were passing by the Indianapolis Motor Speedway because Bisceglia is known for being the first in line each year at the Indianapolis 500 race track. This is his thirty-seventh consecutive year.

Bisceglia has been waiting in line this year since April 24--33 days. His longest wait has been 60 days, arriving April 1 in 1968, and his shortest wait was 26 days, arriving May 4 in 1978.

Bisceglia is originally from Long Beach, California.

In 1949 track authorities honored him with the key to the Motor Speedway gate. Now he enters and exits the track when he wants. He gets in all the festivities free. Bisceglia can sit anywhere during the race, but, "I usually sit in the tower with the celebrities," he said.

On May 13, 1967, the Indiana Ford dealers presented Bisceglia with a 1967 Ford van, in which he lives. The van has a bed, cabinets, an air conditioner and burglar alarm that he built, suitcases full of scrapbooks, clothes and pictures. He has a butane stove but said he "doesn't like to cook."

Just about everything that is needed to live is found right inside his van. Bisceglia said, "I only get 16 miles to a gallon, but I've got a pretty good load."

Among his honors, he was awarded the Key to the City approximately eight years ago and ex-mayor William Hudnut proclaimed May 26, 1978 as Larry Bisceglia Day for his traditional dash of color, enthusiasm and spirit that he brings to the Speedway each year.

In a track-side Reveille interview, Bisceglia was asked how he felt about all the publicity. He said, "It doesn't bother me. I come to see the race not all of the publicity. I've done something that no one has ever done in the game of sport and I didn't even realize it. All I wanted to do was see the race. All I wanted was 10 years of being famous and to let people know I was here for the race."

Bisceglia said that he doesn't pick a certain race car driver to win the race because one may think he favors them more than another.

Bisceglia said he doesn't know whether he will be here next year or not. "Just because I leave don't mean nothing. I'm just a fan," he said.

The Senior Class of '85: just take a look at them now . . .

As the end of their twelve years together comes to a close, the Senior Class may never again stand together as one. For many of the seniors, graduation may seem like the end. The tears and good-byes mark a finality, but it is just the beginning.

Through memories, love, and friendship the seniors will be remembered in the hearts of many. Just look at them now . . .
